CHICAGO MAYOR SAYS DRY ISSUE BARS ABILITY IN PUBLIC SERVICE

Good Government Almost Impossible Under Present Conditions, Deyer Tells Senators.

PROHIBITION TAKES UP TOO MUCH TIME

Possible, With Co-Operation, to Enforce Unpopular Law, but It Never Has Been Done in America.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Mayor William E. Deyer of Chicago, on the witness stand again today before the Senate subcommittee investigating the workings of the Volstead act, called upon American statesmanship to give the great bulk of the country relief from a situation which he described as desperate and intolerable.

Deyer asserted that the feeling in the prohibition question was so tame that officials were now being chosen in the great cities solely because they were wet or dry, without regard to their real qualifications.

He appealed dramatically for the creation of a dispassionate organization, uninfluenced by "payroll politics," to either the wet or dry side, that would study the whole wet and dry situation with view to reaching a solution that would take it out of politics.

Close on Condemning Law.
While carefully refraining from admission of any of the proposed changes in the Volstead act, the Mayor skirted close to a condemnation of existing law, insofar as it applies to the cities of the nation, when he declared:

"We can't have successful government if we impose laws on that city (Chicago) that it doesn't want, a thing brings pandemonium, and we have pretty nearly reached that stage in our municipal program today."

Deyer said that his city administration had driven the commercialized moonshine traffic, as a "grave menace" of the state. Chicago, but that it had promptly settled to a "truce" all about the city, where it was meeting with practically no molestation from the municipal, State or Federal authorities.

Replying to Senator Reed of Missouri, Deyer said that his statement about the suppression of the commercialized traffic did not apply to the making of moonshine and home brew in the homes of the people.

Three Phases of Prohibition.
He said there had been three distinct phases since the establishment of prohibition.

The first was a period of benevolent effects, when he noted a marked decrease in the number of inmates in the House of Corrections.

These figures, he said, "almost converted him to prohibition."

Then came a period distinguished by the organization of great syndicates for the violation of the law, the population of the Bridewell jail went up.

After the successful drive against the commercialized traffic in Chicago came the third, the present period, that of the making of moonshine in large quantities. They are there in a most threatening way."

Derides Olson's "Ballyhoo." As on yesterday the Mayor attacked the charge made by Olson that stills were operating in Chicago with the virtual connivance of the city police. He asked that the "ballyhoo an dith blah" be driven out of prohibition districts.

With obvious reference to Olson, he said that "the minds of some people are not operating when their tongues are clamoring."

Speaking not only as Mayor, but as a former Appellate Court Judge, Deyer assailed the theory of enforcement that would send squads of agents into private homes to pull out and destroy stills.

With increasing vehemence as he warmed to his subject, Deyer said what would be

"YES, SIR, THAT'S MY BABY," SAYS THIS 10-YEAR-OLD

Writes Official She Mislaid Child in Subway and Offers $5 for Return.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 22.—Ten-year-old Muriel Mausner of Yonkers, tired of playing with dolls, wanted a real baby, so she devised an elaborate plan to obtain one by posing as the mother of a foundling.

The baby was found in a subway station a few days ago, and Muriel had read of a police belief that the mother had abandoned it because it was a boy, while pink trimmings on its well made clothing indicated a girl had been expected.

The baby was about to be adopted by a wealthy family when Welfare Commissioner Coler received a letter from Muriel, saying she was the mother. It was signed "Mrs. Muriel Hauser." Investigators went to Yonkers and with their arrival Muriel's house of cards collapsed and her mother learned of the scheme.

Muriel's letter was typed on a small typewriter which she had recently received as a birthday gift. It says:

"That's my baby you found on Thirty-fourth street of Lexington Avenue Subway. I am sorry to say that I was careless, but it will never happen again. I had so many bundles my arms were tired so I laid down my bundles in my hurry and got the baby I forgot in my best bundle. I hope you won't charge me more than $5 because I spent all my money for him when I bought him. I would have notified you sooner but I had the grippe. Please don't have a policeman bring him as it's a shame to have such a young baby connected with the police. If you can't send him, I'll call for him, and if I can't call I'll send my little sister after him. I'll be all right because she is very careful. Don't say much to her, just give it to her, because it will be a surprise for her."

Rules Committee Extends Courtesy After They Threaten to Invade Floor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, April 22.—One of the last strongholds to resist the invasion of feminism in the Senate has capitulated to a new demand of the modern woman. Some 15 members have woman secretaries. While, under the rules, secretaries in the discharge of their duties have access to the Senate floor, in practice this has applied only to male secretaries, who come and go while sessions are being held, carrying papers to the desks of Senators, notifying them of telephone calls, and summoning them from the floor to meet visiting delegations from back home. But the woman secretary has rarely sat foot within the sacred precincts.

The other day the woman secretaries announced that instead of no gallery section, they set apart for them, they would exercise their rights and invade the floor unless provision was made for them.

The Rules Committee, of the Senate acted promptly. A section of 12 seats, just adjoining the reserved gallery, which includes the President's row, was set aside for woman secretaries.

BE WET AND WIN, BRENNAN SAYS TO PARTY IN ILLINOIS

Volsteadism, Not World

Senate Race, Chicago Boss Tells Democrats.

URGES CONVENTION TO INDORSE STAND

Nominee in Favor of Home Rule for Cities—Upstate and Downstate Interests Are One.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 22.—Declaring that prohibition is the question uppermost in people's minds, Volsteadism a "disgrace" and "in conflict with the fundamentals of human nature," George E. Brennan today laid his candidacy for the United States Senate before the Illinois Democratic State Convention which is here to make a new Democratic platform.

His contest for the place with the Republican candidate, Frank L. Smith, he said, must be built on that issue.

"The World Court question," he added, "is no issue."

"I am making repeat or modification of the Volstead act the dominant issue of my candidacy because the people of the United States have given it that rank.

One Universal Interest.

"Wherever you go, it is the one subject of universal interest and discussion—the one question on which differences of opinion are definite and positive. Let us have a referendum on the question. When Illinois votes to end the disgrace of Volsteadism, as I believe it will, the Federal law-makers will no longer fear to vote their conviction."

Turning to the World Court issue, Brennan praised Woodrow Wilson, but asserted that "until there is a clearing in the political atmosphere in Europe, it is folly for this country to become entangled in any part of the League of Nations machinery, including the so-called World Court."

Referring to Smith, he said: "If he still attempts to make the World Court an issue, this country is in for a hard time." He had been in the United States in January. I would have voted against the World Court. My Republican opponent could have done no more."

For Home Rule for Cities.

Making a passing reference to the reapportionment fight between the up-state and down-state, the candidate said one of his issues is to provide for the cities of Illinois.

"It is only simple justice," he said, "to let Chicago or any other city govern itself in these details that are peculiar to itself and in which it pays all the cost of government."

"There is no good reason why the people of Chicago and of down-state should ever be at cross-purposes. We belong to one another. There is no hostility in Chicago to down-state people or interests. If there is down-state hostility or suspicion, it is not well founded. Down-state interests can never suffer by coming into Chicago."

He described this as the "most difficult and threatening phase of all."

District Attorney Olson.—said the Mayor, "told you there were stills. He might just as well have said 10,000. Nobody knows how many there are, but they are there in large numbers. They are there in a most threatening way."

Derides Olson's "Ballyhoo." As on yesterday the Mayor attacked the charge made by Olson that stills were operating in Chicago with the virtual connivance of the city police. He asked that the "ballyhoo an dith blah" be driven out of prohibition districts.

FRANCE SUBMITS NEW OFFER FOR DEBT SETTLEMENT

Ambassador Berenger, Presents Proposal at 30-Minute Session of American Commission.

SAFEGUARD CLAUSE IN SEPARATE LETTER

Reed of Missouri Moves Reconsideration of Italian Ratification—Plan for Vote Today Fails.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 23.—France today submitted a new offer for the settlement of its $4,000,000 war debt to the United States.

The proposal was taken under advisement by the American Debt Commission until tomorrow, when it will meet again.

Ambassador Berenger, who has been given full power by France to negotiate with this country, appeared before the commission today to present the French offer. He was before the commission less than 30 minutes. His statement was made in French and he left with the commission English translations of the proposed new settlement proposed.

Ground Prepared.

The groundwork for the offer had been carefully canvassed in recent conferences between the Ambassador and Secretary Mellon, and it was indicated that the commission would not be long in making its decision.

The usual formalities were dispensed with, Berenger arrived promptly at the meeting hour, and after a brief introduction began the presentation of his country's offer. He was accompanied by attaché, a son who had attempted to hold up the bank.

Having been a member of the Cailloux mission, the Ambassador is thoroughly familiar with the debt situation.

London, April 23.—Baroness Leith of Fyvie, who was Miss Mary Louise January of St. Louis, is the chief beneficiary of the will of the late Baron Leith of Fyvie, filed today, which discloses an estate of $2,350,000.

The only other survivor in the family is a daughter, the Hon. Lady Bird wife of Col. Sir Charles Rosden Burn. A son was killed in the South African war and a grandson in Belgium in 1914. Lord Leith died last November at the age of 78 years.

Lady Leith is a half sister of Harry C. January, St. Louis broker, and of Mrs. John C. Davis of 17, Westmoreland place, Mrs. Ames W. Thayer of 592 Waterman is a cousin.

She was married to the then Lieut. Alexander Leith during a visit of a British naval squadron to San Francisco in 1870. Her husband soon thereafter entered the employ of her father, Derick Almoner January in St. Louis, and became secretary of the Missouri Furnace Co. Later he expanded his steel interests until he became a partner of Andrew Carnegie and retired to Scotland.

Bankers also reported a heavy movement of funds to London to take advantage of the higher interest rates prevailing there, but this money was practically on a 4 per cent basis and prime commercial paper was quoted at 4 to 4 1/4 basis, as compared to 5 to 5 1/4 basis.

Lower money rates are expected to stimulate business. Professional traders who had taken extended short positions in the market on the theory that stock prices would continue downward through the summer as a result of the falling off in several lines of the Eastern State Penitentiary.

Marshall, who dismembered the body of the woman and hid the severed parts in the woods near Philadelphia, took the sentence calmly.

Italy can destroy the Italian market for bonds by taxation," he asserted. "The bonds only carry one-eighth of one per cent interest and if Italy levies any tax it will be more than that. The settlement is indefensible. Senators who voted for it voted for the United States to act as general wet nurse for Europe."

It is the plan of leaders to press for ratification of five other debt agreements pending in the Senate which have been fought at every stage by the opposition parties. On one occasion 13 labor members were suspended.

DOHENY BECOMES REPUBLICAN, LIKES PARTY'S PROSPERITY

By the Associated Press.
P. Edward L. Doheny, who for years was an influential figure in Democratic ranks, has been transferred to the Republican party.

In the background politically since his split with the Democrats over the naval oil reserve scandal in 1924, the oil producer announced in an interview last night that he had registered as a Republican for the first time "because I decided to affiliate with and support the party which more than any other embodies the forces and policies which have produced our unprecedented era of prosperity."

Because of his connection with the oil scandal, Doheny was ruled from the California Democratic Central Committee in March, 1924.

BLEASE FLEES, BUT RETURNS TO SEAT

THEODORE ROOSEVELT AGAINST VOLSTEAD ACT FICERS USED FIRM'S MONEY TO PAY OWN BILLS

It Has Brought About Law Violations on Gigantic Scale, He Says.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch
NEW YORK, April 23.—Theodore Roosevelt, who in 1924 had the support of New York drys for the Governorship, declared last night he was opposed and always had been opposed to the Volstead law.

"The only time I could legally express my opinion thereon was when the so-called 'beer bill' was before the Legislature when I was a member," he said. "I voted for the beer bill."

He spoke at a dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association in the Waldorf. Others invited to speak included the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Will Rogers and Sir Charles Higham, S. E. Thompson, business manager of the Chicago Tribune, was toastmaster.

Roosevelt's declaration against the prohibition law came as the climax to a survey of the increase in law violations. Of the Volstead law:

"Perhaps no law in the community has contributed more to the breakdown of respect for law. Entirely outside of the moral or constitutional aspect of this law, it has brought about law violations on a more commercial and gigantic scale than our country has ever known before. This law has built up a profession in the United States, that of the violators."

"Of course, I am opposed to the saloon. I am convinced, however, that the repeal or modification of the Volstead law does not preclude the return of the saloon. That can be prevented by enactment. Were I a member of the Federal Congress I would vote for the modification or repeal of the Volstead law and the substitution therefor of some enactment permitting the increases of alcoholic content to such a point as to compensate for the stipulated share."

"I believe this to be absolutely necessary in order to check the murders, corruption and other evils that have followed in the train of this law."

Decks Drawn by President and Manager on Home Building Corporation Offered at Trial.

100 FOR U. S. TAX AND $1000 ON AUTO

Stat Losses and Expenses in Six Months of Operation Shown by Books to Be $147,903.

W. Beck, president of Federal Home Building Corporation and Edward J. Barrett, president and manager, paid personal sums from the funds of the company as shown today by testimony in the trial of Beck, Barrett and two other officials of the company in Federal Court, on charges of using the mails to defraud and conspiracy.

Among the payments made by Beck with checks drawn on the company's funds were $120 to Beck's personal indebtedness, $500 in payment of his Federal income tax, $1,050 as first payment on a standard car. Beck paid clothing and department store bills in the manner.

These facts came out in the course of an examination of the books, which showed $12,000 was taken in by Beck and that when the men had run its 6 months of $129,04 was on hand.

Beck paid clothing and department store bills in the manner.

Estimator Tells of Plan to Build Dwellings Under Actual Cost.

Plans to build dwellings at a contract price less than their actual cost as a means of advertising the company, were related by George Ducommun, estimator for the building corporation, in his testimony yesterday afternoon.

Robert A. Lennerson, a public agent, testified that his examination of the books showed Beck owned the company $39,000.

These sums were due to the commissioners due to the rules, had been taken from the checks drawn with checks by them.

Commissioners allowed were $50 to each. These represent the stipulated share, 20 per cent of the first down payment in the contract, holding lumber among 400 men and one who invested in the company's contracts, expecting that it would build homes for them at a lesser than contractors did in the work.

Beck's Checks Total $21,860.

The sums charged against Beck total $27,352 cash withdrawal and $29,925.40 spent by the man in constructing Beck's home. The payment of store bills and company checks was then $3,000. The total of checks drawn Beck in favor of himself or in payment of his personal bills was $66,425.

The total drawn by Barrett on checks signed by Beck as president and treasurer, in favor of Beck in payment of his account was $25,460.56. Cash withdrawn by Barrett not accounted by check, were $112,445. The single check drawn in Barrett's favor was $85,000 and the down drawn to $5.

Expenses Listed.

Fred W. Schramm, field supervisor, testified that the company employed 45 bricklayers and a force of carpenters, and a force of 200 men.

He said the company's weekly payroll ran up to $9000 a week, that being the figure for the last week of active operations.

promised to evacuate the Ruhr if Germany accepted the Dawes plan.

Not putting the reservation that the settlement itself, it is believed, the American objection to linking war debts and reparations will be overcome.

Premier Briand is determined, however, to sign now if the Debt Commission accepts the tentative settlement reached by M. Berenger and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

French Senate Leader Threatens to Oppose Settlement.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 23.—Henry Franklin-Bouillon, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, told the Associated Press today he would fight any debt funding scheme with the United States following the lines said to have been agreed upon.

"The agreement is catastrophic, from all I can learn from Washington," said Franklin-Bouillon.

"How could any French Parliament adopt such a thing?"

"Abandoning the safeguard above all seems to me to be scandalous. We surely cannot engage ourselves to make payments to America without having a guarantee that account will be taken of our capacity for payment, notably the sums we will or will not receive from Germany."

"We cannot bind ourselves to pay all the costs of the war."

Premier Briand told the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon that conversations looking toward settlement of the debt were continuing in Washington.

It must not be expected, he added, that the "safeguard" clause, protecting France in case of a reparation deficit by Germany, would be maintained in its entirety.

The first thing that was necessary was to reach a settlement. Ambassador Berenger was making every effort to arrange payments that would take into account Germany's probable payments under the Dawes plan.

Germany owes American claimants and cannot pay, Garner said. "A few individuals, including Secretary Mellon and Mr. Mills (Rep. of New York) would have our taxpayers pay them what Germany owes."

Representative Hawley (Rep.) of Oregon, acting chairman of the Ways and Means Committee in charge of the measure, replied, challenging the Texan "to open up the entire question" before the committee on Monday.

National honor was at stake, Hawley said, and the United States is not bound to follow the bad example of another nation in confiscating private property."

Garner said he had never attacked the validity of individual claims, but that he would "do this to some of them when we get to it."

FORMER KIRKWOOD BANKER, WHO FLED, VISITS RELATIVES

Louis J. Kerth, former Kirkwood banker, whose whereabouts became known several weeks ago after an absence of eight years, visited relatives in Kirkwood last week, returning Monday to his present home in California, according to his wife, Mrs. Frances Nicolls. Kerth has taught school near Kirkwood since his disappearance.

It is alleged Kerth has a large income from Skouras Bros., Harry Koplar and Meyer Katz and treasurer of the oil company. He could be working for the individuals, but was employed by the oil concern.

After the marriage, the petition alleges, Freudiger exercised on other women artifices with which he had won the plaintiff, namely nine women mentioned in the suit by their first names, a list of whom the plaintiff says she found. Further, it is charged, he induced various women to write letters to him and send their photographs.

Mrs. Brossman Heads D. A. R.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—With the casting of the first ballot in the triennial election, Mrs. Alfred H. Brossman of Connecticut became president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Brossman was the only candidate.

The singing Buckingham Orchestra promises to outdo itself, while Sunny "Swede" Fletcher, Otto Reinhardt and Paul Sporleeder will present special features.

In anticipation of this gay finale to a festive season, we are omitting our usual Friday night dance in order to make more elaborate preparations for Saturday.

As usual, however, besides the superlative music, you will be served

SENATOR WALSH OPPOSES CHANGE IN COURT RULES

Fears Confusion If All Federal Court Procedure Is Dictated by Supreme Tribunal.

By the Associated Press.

TEXARKANA, April 23.—Proposal that the Supreme Court of the United States be given authority to prescribe rules of procedure and practice in law cases in the United States District Courts was opposed by Senator Thomas J.
Walsh of Montana, in an address today before the Tri-State Bar Association.

Senator Walsh explained that the Cummins bill now pending in the Senate proposed to abandon the system dating from 1789, which provided that practice in the Federal courts, with few exceptions, should follow as nearly as possible rules and regulations of state courts.

The proposal, which has been defeated twice in Congress, Senator Walsh said, would insure uniformity of practice across the different states. But it is "undesirable," he said, "that it would result in a lack of uniformity as between the practice in the courts of a state and the practice of the Federal courts in the same state."

Uniformity as between the states would be convenient to those lawyers who try cases in many states, but to the humble lawyer whose practice is confined to the state in which he resides it has quite a different aspect. The Senator said:
"I am for the 100 who stay at home as against the one who goes abroad."

ROBBER KILLED FLEEING AFTER FUTILE HOLDUP

William Thomas, Bartender, Fatally Shot in Fight in Alley With East St. Louis Police.

An attempt to hold up 15 men in a small East St. Louis poolroom last night ended fatally for William Thomas, 42 years old. Pursued for several blocks by policemen who wounded him as they fired blindly into a dark alley near Fifth and State street, from which he was shooting, he died at St. Mary's Hospital at 6 o'clock this morning.

Thomas was formerly a coal miner but in recent weeks was employed as a bartender at 471 Collingsville avenue. He lived in a basement room at 604 Collingsville avenue and according to acquaintances had been drunk almost continuously for two weeks. At 8:10 o'clock last night he walked into the poolroom of Ardell Ledbetter, 420 Collingsville avenue, a place which he frequented.

Bystander Shot Preventing Holdup.
 About five feet from the door he stopped, according to witnesses, and drew a revolver.

"Everybody put 'em in the air, and I don't mean maybe," he shouted. The customers instantly dropped their cues and fled to the back door. Lawrence Schumacher of 630 Collingsville avenue snatched at the revolver.

Thomas pulled the trigger and a bullet passed through a finger of Schumacher's hand. It pierced the sleeve of another man's coat, smashed through a showcase and a thin partition, into a tailor shop next door.

Thomas fled. Police were called and Patrolman Glenn Ruffner and Clifford Gregory, in an automobile, set out to find him. He was walking on Fifth street, near State, where a group of children was playing when the police saw him.

Pistol Fight in Dark.
 According to Gregory, the police parked their machine and followed Thomas on foot. "We shouted to him to halt," said Gregory, "and he turned and fired a shot at us. Then he ran into the alley. When we reached the mouth of the alley, he fired three shots at us. We could not see him and we both fled in the direction from which his shots had come.

"He screamed, 'You got me. Come on and finish the job.' We waited until more policemen arrived, then four of us went in with flashlights and found him lying on the ground."

One of five bullets fired by the policemen had hit Thomas, passing through his body.

Thomas refused to tell who he was or answer questions about the attempted robbery. He died cursing the police in mauldin fashion, and was identified by papers in his pockets.

His mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Harrison, lives at 526 Monroe avenue, East Alton. He had been separated from his wife for several years. Four of the pool room customers, who said they could identify him as the robber, were summoned for the inquest.

MOVIES NOT HARMFUL
IF EYES ARE NORMAL

Specialists Find Persons Who Become Fatigued Would Be Tired If They Read or Worked.

By JAMES L. COOPER

DALLAS, Tex., April 23.—If a person can read, write or work without fatigue of the eyes, there is no harm in attending the movies, people whose eyes became fatigued at was the conclusion announced today before the specialists in diseases of the eye at the annual session of the American Medical Association.

Drs. A. R. Irvine and M. F. Weymann of Los Angeles studied 150 persons to find out how much the use of the eyes affected the ability to see clearly, and how soon the eyes would show fatigue. People who had developed pain, fever and general disturbances the movies also became tired when doing any other sort of work affecting the vision.

"Beware of the spider," was the warning conveyed to the section on pharmacology and therapeutics by Dr. Emil Bogen of Los Angeles. He told of 15 persons treated in the Los Angeles General Hospital who had developed pain, fever and general disturbances in the May issue of the Harvard Professor Offers Railroad Problem Solution

Prof. Ripley Suggests Variable Rates, Consolidation and Elimination of Politics.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23.—William Z. Ripley, Rhodes professor of economics at Harvard, and an authority on railroad matters, in an article in the May issue of the World's Work, urges establishment of variable rates in different parts of the country, rapid consolidation of various carriers and complete elimination of politics as the solution for today's American transportation problems.

Prof. Ripley points out at length the improvements in rail management and general rail conditions in the last few decades and urges wider public ownership of rail stocks. He asserts the roads are the only great public utility which is outstripped by nearly all such utilities in the public ownership of stock.

The Illinois Central, far famed for ownership among its patrons along the line, had about sixteen as many shareholders in 1920 as the Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago, he says. In 1923 the railroad had come to have 24,000 owners; the electric company had 42,900—well on toward twice as many.

Turning to the fact that while the railroad as a whole in 1924 averaged 5.83 per cent on their earnings on their investment, many only by variable rates that they can all be brought into satisfactory financial condition.

Deliberates Only Four Minutes in Acquitting George Upton of Mis-treating Insurance Agent.

ARREST WAS MADE DURING LIQUOR RAIDCommon Assault Indictment Against Upton
Based on Same Incident
Likely to Be Dismissed.Detective George Upton was exonerated of the charge of oppression in office last night by a jury which deliberated only four minutes. The trial began last Monday before Judge Gayer in the Court of Criminal Correction and ended at afternoon sessions for the days.Upton was indicted on charges brought by Augustine A. Cervantes, insurance broker, with offices in the La Salle Building, who testified last Tuesday that the detective had struck him without cause, and struck and cursed him at the corner of Dearborn and La Salle streets. Upton said he was searched against his will at the station.A charge of common assault, based on the same evidence, is yet pending against Upton, but it probably will be dismissed, as the State has no further testimony to offer on in the trial just ended.Instructions to the Jury by Judge Gayer were to the effect that if the jury found that Upton had made a legal arrest, the subsequent compulsory search and confinement in the holdover were justified, and that if the evidence showed that Cervantes had offered resistance after a legal arrest, that the defendant was within his rights in using force to subdue the prisoner.
Cervantes told the jury to rule only on the evidence presented by the witness.The defense rested late yesterday afternoon, after Upton had denied Cervantes' charges.
The defendant testified that either he never had struck Cervantes or subjected him to trial abuse, after the arrest during a raid on the soft drink saloon John Meseras, 809 South Vanderbilt avenue, a year ago.Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer denied the State's argument to the jury. "The only reason I am here is because the nature of my office compels me to be here. Although I did not issue the warrant against this officer, he was arrested by a grand jury. This means Cervantes stands alone on the side with the gigantic force of the Metropolitan Police Department on the other." We merely present the evidence and ask you, gentlemen, for justice—that is all."Plea of Defense Counsel.
Gernard Bass, defense counsel, told the jurors to be guided by the evidence and not by emotion.
They say that Cervantes stands alone. Why wasn't Meseras here to testify? He saw it all. He had been ready to tell the truth. If Cervantes stands alone, he is in his own fault.The trouble is that Cervantes is too big to be arrested. He is too big to tell a mere police officer his name. Why, he had just had lunch with Al Schweitzer, and was a friend of that august gentleman, Victor Miller. Why should he talk to a police officer? Oh, no. They couldn't arrest him. He is too big.And Schweitzer wasn't good enough for him to persecute this officer. He hired the most able counselor he could find—Andrew Maroney. Mr. Maroney will stand here in a moment and tell you all about the Fourth of July, and the Declaration of Independence, and mothers, and children, and maybe of the Bill of Rights.
It is very interesting, but it has nothing to do with this case."

True to Bass' prediction, Maro-ney began his argument with a history of the struggle of man for freedom. The other side doesn't want to hear about freedom," he said. "It is natural that they are not interested in it. But it took human beings thousands of years for man to gain that freedom, and I for one, do not propose to watch the police department trample it into the dirt."Without liberty there is no life; without liberty there is no happiness," Maroney concluded with a recitation of a statement to Judge Gayer, in which he said that if any police officer attempted to deprive any or any of his family of their rights under the Constitution, that the policeman would find a

WINE-GROWING COUNTRIES UNITE AGAINST PROHIBITION
International Office Created in France and Propaganda to Be Pushed in America

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch).

PARIS, April 23.—A bottle of wine on every dinner table in the world" is the slogan of an international office just created in Paris by 19 states. The United States is one of the chief countries in which propaganda will be pushed.

The new organization is really a league of governments of wine-growing countries pledged to unite in a world-wide fight against prohibition.

The initiative was taken by France, Italy, Greece and Spain. A statement drawn by them has been ratified by the French Chamber of Deputies and adhered to also by Austria, Tunisia, Hungary, Luxembourg, Chile and Mexico.

Deputy Barthé, who put the scheme through the French Parliament, makes no secret of the league's intention to co-ordinate the efforts of the diplomacy of all nations that possess wine industries as well as those which content themselves with drinking wine, to combat dry propaganda.

"For," says M. Barthé, such propaganda "causes prejudice to the agriculture of every country, especially France."

Still more countries are expected to come in and the wine coalition is already preparing for a vigorous offensive in the United States.

ST. PAUL SPENT MILLIONS TO GET
ITS COAL HAULEDFormer Director Tells I. C.
C. Problems of Fuel, Water and Repairs Always Faced Board.LACKED FEEDERS TO DEVELOP TRAFFICSays Equipment Was in Poor Condition When Line Was Released From Federal Control.By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23.—That the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, now in receivership, was in poor condition as to equipment and revenues after its return from Federal control was compelled to pay millions to other railroads for hauling its coal, and was unable to develop potential business along its routes, was the burden of testimony yesterday at the hearing before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Cox.

Samuel P. Fisher, a former director of the road and representative of the E. H. Harkness interests told about the economic problems.

"Did the St. Paul have a budget system after you became a director?" asked Walter L. Disher, attorney for the commissioners.

"In one sense it did," was the reply. "It had one for one year. I know. That was the year after the road came back from Federal control. The difficulty in the way of having a fixed budget was that we were living from hand to mouth."

Coal Always Problem.

The road was always faced by the problems of coal, coal and repairs, according to Samuel Fisher, who testified that figures placed before him showed the road paid approximately $2,500,000 to other roads during a fiscal year to haul its coal, not including the cost of moving the coal over the St. Paul's lines.

He also testified that there were 10,000 cars needing repairs when the Government released the road, and that the entire equipment was in bad shape.

Attorney Fisher developed that Samuel Fisher, when Director, had spent a great deal of time looking over the Puget Sound extension of the St. Paul. He asked him if he thought the results justified the millions spent on electrifying the extension. The former Director said that the Puget Sound lines were necessary to bring business from the East and compete with other roads having Coast connections.

Lacked Feeder Lines.

When asked if the management of the road under H. G. Bryant had improved, Fisher said it had. He added that the road's costs were lower in some cases than those of competing lines, but that the opposition systems had more business from better feeder lines. Great efforts were made to solve the question of feeders, according to the former director.

"We considered a number of plans, but could raise no money to build feeders," he said. "We considered the project of a north and south line from Casper, Wyo., to Miles City, Mont., to take in the oil business. I thought that would be profitable. The project failed because the financial arrangements fell down."

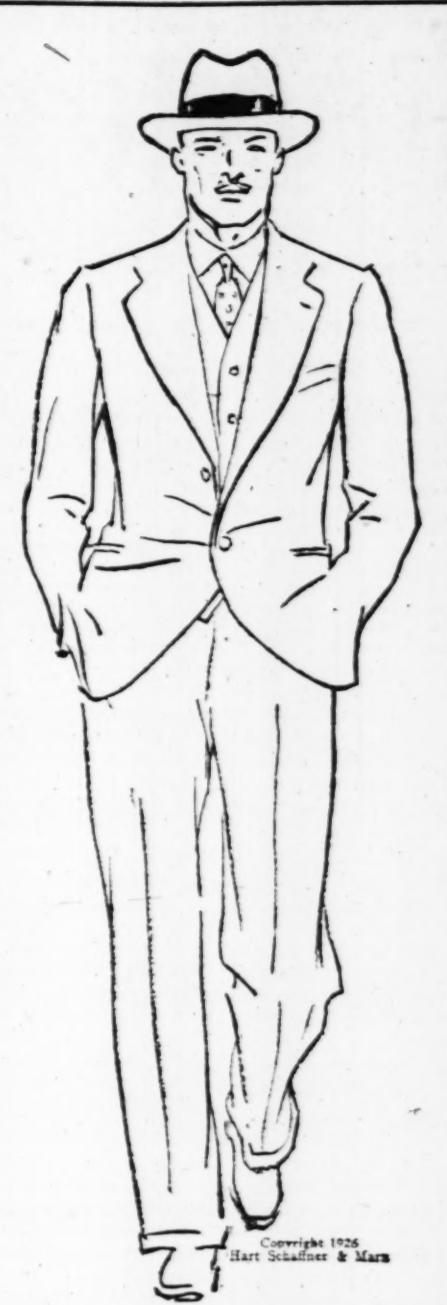

He then described a plan to take care of the notes maturing in 1925, 1932 and 1934, which failed because too little collateral was offered, and added that the bankers advised that the issuing of new notes for the maturing ones be held off until some definite gauge of 1924 business could be secured.

OKLAHOMA LAND RUN OF 1889 RE-ENACTED AT CELEBRATIONMan Who Timed Release Hour Of-ficiates Again. Using the Same Watch.By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 23.—Memories of the dash of 1889 when 5000 square miles of land were opened by the Federal Government for settlement, came flooding back to those who were in the race when they watched it re-enacted here as nearly as possible yesterday.

Nearly 50 persons, some on horseback, some in covered wagons and others on foot, rushed across the "line" when the watch was in the hands of Ransom Payne, who marked the noon hour.

Horseback riders surged ahead, the wagons followed and the foot racers brought up the rear.

Over an expanse of State-owned land near the State Capitol they raced until they had reached their "lots" about 300 yards from the starting point. Cash prizes were awarded to the winners. The race was part of the annual celebration held in commemoration of the opening of Oklahoma Territory and the founding of Oklahoma City.

PECHAN'S AVERAGE WEEKLY EARNINGS PLACED AT $1000

Missing Realty Man Regarded by Competitors as Prosperous — Liked to Be Called Wealthy.

TOOK $3000 FROM SAFE IN OFFICE

Left Wife Without Funds and Her Brother, a Priest, Entrusted Him With $35,000.

Examiners in charge of an audit of the books of Thomas P. Pechan, real estate dealer at Twelfth and Russell boulevards, who suddenly disappeared from his office and home early last week, have found that Pechan's real estate and insurance business brought him a profit averaging about $1000 a week.

What Pechan did with this money and with certain deeds of trust and sums of money given to him by his customers has not been ascertained by the examiners.

Attorneys in touch with the work of the examiners have stated that Pechan's liabilities will exceed his assets by possibly $250,000, which his customers, who seemed to trust him implicitly, stand to lose. These people, all workingmen and women, in most cases took only Pechan's personal note or receipt for moneys or deeds of trust intrusted to his keeping.

"Millionaire Bohemian." Pechan's real estate and insurance business, the books show, was one of the most prosperous of the outlying real estate concerns and he was looked upon by other real estate dealers as a prosperous man. Pechan himself liked to be known as the "millionaire Bohemian," and was referred to by many of his admiring countrymen, Bohemians and Slovaks, who were in the majority among his customers.

When he left he took $3000 cash from the office safe, leaving his wife in their home at 3125 Russell boulevard without funds. She is in the care of friends. Title to the home is in the names of Pechan and his wife, and the receiver for Pechan's real estate business believes title to other property will be found in the names of Pechan and his wife.

Considerable real estate was sequestered by Pechan in the Beattie Ann Realty Co., which was incorporated in 1918, with Pechan and his wife holding the majority of stock, and it is believed that creditors and customers may share part of their claims from this company.

Eugene Rush, an attorney, was appointed receiver for the Beattie Ann Company yesterday and took charge of the books today. He would make no statement concerning the condition of the company.

This morning Oliver T. Remmers, attorney for Harry Nettle, who had previously been appointed receiver for Pechan's properties, appeared before Circuit Judge Calhoun in chambers and orally asked him to rescind Rush's appointment, arguing that the Beattie Ann Realty Co. was an integral part of Pechan's general business and properly under the charge of Receiver Nettle. Judge Calhoun, who made Rush's appointment, failed to agree with Remmers and declined to withdraw the order, saying that the Beattie Ann Company was a separate and distinct concern, and that he saw no adviser of the receiver clashing in the exercise of their functions.

Small Irregularities.

The Bohemian-American Building & Loan Association, of which Pechan was secretary, appears to be in good condition, according to the examiners. Only comparatively minor irregularities have been found on which the association can be held liable. This concern may be turned back to its directors by the State Finance Department within a few days.

Among the large claims against Pechan is that St. Wenceslaus Catholic Church, 3018 Oregon Avenue, of which Pechan was a prominent member, The Rev. William A. Hamil, pastor, is a brother of Pechan's wife.

Last March the church borrowed $40,000 from a bank in which Pechan was a director to finance erection of a building adjoining the present structure. Only $5000 was required immediately and the remaining $35,000 was intrusted to Pechan for investment in the Bohemian-American Building and Loan Association. The church holds Pechan's receipt for the money, but there is no record of the transaction in the books of the association. What Pechan did with this money has not been discovered to date.

Boulder Canyon Dam Favored.

Arm of Woman Found in Sand Pit.

By the Associated Press.
MADISON, S. D., April 23.—The left arm of a woman, amputated at the elbow, was found in a sand pit here today and authorities are making an extensive investigation. A bone in the forearm was found to be fractured, physicians said, after an examination. Authorities said they had no record of missing persons and could not account for the arm.

ROOKIE COP IN FIGHT WITH MAN ON ROOF

Thomas Wicks and His Prisoner Both Dragged to Safety by a Policeman.

FLOW OF LAVA SLACKENS

By the Associated Press.
 HILO, T. H., April 23.—The latest flow of lava down the slopes of Mauna Loa moved slowly last night, almost stagnant, after having enveloped six houses, ten water tanks and two sheds during the day and nearly pocketed a small herd of cattle, rescued after the flow slackened. Some signs of activity were evident near the summit of the mountain, but clouds and steam hid the volcano from view. A sharp earthquake was felt last night.

Probationary Patrolman Thomas Wicks, who is learning to be a policeman, had an experience last night which would stir the blood of a veteran. On the slanting roof of a three-story house he fought a hand-to-hand combat with a man under the influence of liquor. They were perilously near the edge and a long, hard fall when another officer dragged them to safety through a dormer window.

As a policeman, Wicks is still in the rookie class. He spends his days in the school of instruction and at night he is sent with a seasoned patrolman on his tour of duty. Last night he was out with Patrolman Walter Hilkier, who was sent to arrest Raymond Hendrix, 22 years old, of 3852 Page boulevard.

An automobile driver, in the neighborhood of Fourteenth street and Franklin avenues, had hit three other cars successively and then departed over a zig-zag course. Hendrix's license number was noted and his city license plate was found at the scene of one collision.

At Hendrix's residence, his wife said he was not at home. Wicks heard the sound of a falling window shade upstairs and ran to the third floor. He saw Hendrix crawl through a dormer window and pursued. On the roof, Hendrix climbed up to a chimney and then slid back, grappling with the inexperienced policeman. Wicks had one foot in the water spout and was fighting for his life, when Hilkier reached through the window and dragged him in.

Hendrix, too, was pulled inside and taken to city hospital, where physicians pronounced him suffering with acute alcoholism. He will be in police court to answer a charge of driving while intoxicated, three charges of careless driving, three charges of leaving the scene of an accident and a charge of resisting arrest.

Advocates Foundation For Musical Research

Judge Charles Claflin Allen Tells of Progress in Music at Missouri Federation Convention.

A foundation for musical research—similar to that for industrial research recently established at Washington University—was advocated by former Circuit Judge Charles Claflin Allen in an address today at the Coronado Hotel before the convention of the Missouri Federation of Music Clubs.

He pointed out that scientists of the last generation, with little or no concern for music as an art, have nevertheless contrived, with their inventions, to place music at the desks of the merchant, manufacturer and banker, and in the homes of all.

"The radio," he said, "has verified the vision of Pythagoras, 2500 years ago, when he derived the harmonic scale from the five then known planets. Through its electro-magnetic developments, it has also enabled us to measure the depth of the sea, to control railroad signals to hear the 'roar' of the magnet, to teach the deaf to hear language and music; it acts as an anesthetic in surgery, measures colors as well as sound, detects and amplifies sound to a radio-frequency of millions and millions of vibrations a second, sends through the ether photographs across the sea, and enables a man in England to talk to his sick relative in Chicago.

Television exists experimentally now, and De Forest, inventor of the radio vacuum tube, promises opera, see, as well as heard, by radio, when he completes his phone.

"Inventors have developed the phonograph, the automatic piano and various reproducing instruments, now used in our schools and homes, to a point where the soul of the composer and interpreter seem to be heard."

This is an age of research in every science and art, the speaker

Carried from Preceding Page.

Every year in Kansas City we hold a Juvenile Composers' Program, and they are given a chance to play their own compositions. We find that without knowing what they are doing, they frequently start out in one key, encompass a difficult modulation into another, and then come back into their original key.

"Their harmonies are apt to be on the order of MacDowell's, or some of the other moderns, rather than the old classic systems. Their

Britain who assemble in Hyde Park, London, June 19. Some of the pilgrims from Scotland plan to walk most of the way.
There will be five main routes for pilgrims to travel, all centering on London. Local committees in Scotland and England have been formed to mobilize the pil-roads lost more than $100,000,000 by the operations of an alleged scalars.

Judge Henning sentenced Blum to pay a $300 fine and to serve two years and six months in prison but suspended the prison sentence during good behavior. Lyons was fined $100 and sentenced to serve nine months in prison. His prison sentence also was suspended.
Jail Term Pays Man's Fare Home.

Three other defendants who pleaded guilty either before or during the trial were fined and received jail sentences which were suspended, except for a two-day term, assessed against one defendant to provide a means of returning him to his home in Chicago.

The two-day sentence was imposed on J. Font Smith, employed by Lyons in Chicago. He pleaded poverty and Judge Henning, after sentencing him to six months in Cook County Jail at Chicago, suspended sentence and imposed an additional sentence of two days in the Cook County Jail so that the Government could pay his fare home. Otherwise, Smith had said, he would have to walk home.

Ross Frazier of Kansas City, scalper, was fined $200 and sentenced to imprisonment for two years and six months and George H. Wertz of Cold Spring, Pa., the only conductor sentenced, was fined $200 and received a similar jail sentence. Their jail sentences were also suspended.

Indicted Last April.

These five men, together with 11 others, including nine Pullman conductors and two alleged scalpers, were indicted here last April, after an extensive investigation by Capt.
Charles G. Bakke of Portland, and the National Bureau of Railroad Detectives. He opened Scalper's office in this city and established himself in the confidence of those indicted, while obtaining evidence against them. It is alleged that conductors retained tickets given them by passengers and mailed these tickets back from stations not far from here to the headquarters of the scalping ring in this city.

Another defendant awaiting trial is O. H. Shirley, who lives at the Laclede Hotel, St. Louis. He was arrested there shortly after the indictments were returned. He is alleged to have been a scalper.

SINUS TROUBLE?

If you are suffering from Sinus trouble—achy pain in the head, eyes, nose and ears—if you have that inflamed and congested condition that usually comes with a cold, then you have the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, in session in the Comptroller's office at City Hall, this morning, to demand a pay increase of $10 a month for about 300 firemen, oilers and coal passers and 50 engineers employed at the waterworks and city institutions.

A stenographer told them the board had left instructions not to be disturbed, and they said they would return later. The representatives were James B. Conroy, for the firemen, and J. L. Cooper for the engineers. Coal passers are paid $125 a month, firemen and oilers $145 and engineers $186.

Conroy told reporters these men, who are accustomed to working seven days a week and on holidays, had had only one $10 increase in the last seven years.

"We want to have a hearing," he declared. "When Kiel was Mayor, he had to get out one midnight to keep the men on the job at the waterworks, and something like that might happen again."

Outside the Comptroller's office Conroy repeated his views to Robert Kratky, Mayor Miller's campaign manager.

Fire Damages Two Flats.

Fire yesterday afternoon in a two-family flat at 716 Wyoming street caused damage to the extent of $2000. The fire, it is believed, was caused by defective fuses. The family of Charles Kaiser live on the first floor, and the family of Robert Abernathy on the second.

EEKS $60,000 FOR ANTISMOKE CAMPAIGN

Citizens' Abatement League also Plans to Employ Engineer to Survey City.

The Citizens' Smoke Abatement League organized Wednesday night, a meeting of representatives of organizations and municipalities of St. Louis and St. Louis County. The Wednesday Club, has announced its plan of campaign to use the interest and co-operation of the population in the elimination of smoke.

The league proposes to employ an engineer and enough assistants to make an adequate smoke survey. The city will organize a technical division to decide on best types of equipment for smoke abatement; an educational division to conduct lectures and provide speakers; a publicity department, and a finance division to secure funds for the campaign.

The league also plans to get the signature of 10,000 women smoke abaters registered at $1 and subscriptions aggregating $100 from coal and furnace industries and $25,000 more from the general public.

At the meeting Wednesday, Carl

F. G. Meyer, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was elected honorary chairman; Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, honorary vice chairman; Eric Ormsby, president Donk Bros. Coal Co., general chairman; Mrs. E. R. Koenig, general vice chairman; William G. Christy, executive secretary, and Felix E. Gunter, treasurer.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, a member of the league, at a dinner at the American Annex Hotel this evening will discuss smoke abatement.

Plans for a Smoke Abatement week in October are being considered, and a smoke abatement exhibit is planned for the Greater St. Louis Independence Celebration and Exposition of Industrial Progress in Forest Park, Sept. 4 to 19.

ITALIANS CHOSE MUSSOLINI; IT IS THEIR AFFAIR"

Friend Says France Would Commit a Fault to Tell Other Peoples How to Govern Themselves.

SAYS SAME POLICY APPLIES TO RUSSIA

Socialist Chief May Astonish by His Words, but Has Really Shown Great Spirit of Co-operation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 23.—Premier Briand, replying to a Socialist intervention in the Chamber of Deputies today, said he was convinced of Premier Mussolini was trying to realize Italy's legitimate aspirations and that he did not wish to disturb the peace of Europe.

In submitting the interpellation to Socialist Deputy, Fontanier, he said: "We Socialists think we will not refuse Italy, whose Chances With Age.

The cells that are the oldest, said Dr. MacDougal, are found in the pit near the center of the plant's base and with their aging he has found many remarkable changes.

The first time you see them the cactus is from the time the cactus is a few years old until it begins to approach 70, there is no great change of the cells in size, but when they get to the ripe old age of 100 or more they are much larger than when they were only 50. They behave differently when they absorb water, for while the young cells do this most rapidly when the water is neither acid nor alkaline, the centenarians absorb pure water more slowly than if slight amounts of hydrochloric acid, or caustic potash, are added.

Stimulating Potatoes.

If one is a farmer he may some day come to know ethylene chlorhydrin very well, for it is a chemical that has remarkable effects on the growth of potatoes, Dr. John M. Coulter, director of the Boyce Thompson Institute for plant research at Yonkers, New York, revealed.

In describing the Institute's work, Dr. Coulter said that one of its problems was to find out how chemicals could awaken in plants from a dormant condition, but not kill the plant.

Want to Moderate, Briand Says.

The day we start indicating to other peoples the manner in which we ought to govern them we will commit a grave fault," the Socialists protested at this, the Communist Deputy, Doriot, said. And Russia?

"I say the same thing for Russia," Dr. Briand replied. "I defy to find any act whatsoever of a French Government tending to intervention in Russia's internal affairs. The representatives of Russia, all of whom are not here in the Chamber, recognize that."

The Italians, he resumed, "are great people, a friendly people, we are at our side in a difficult moment. That is a thing I do not say, even when we are traversing a slightly disquieting period." Denying Italy's growth in population, he said it was difficult to prove it without figures.

Stress on Moral Have Outlet.

"They have all the means she might wish for," he continued, "there is a sort of interior boiling on. It is quite natural that man should seek an outlet. The end of this people (Mussolini), when he finds himself in contact with them, brings a sort of exaltation and enthusiasm, and sometimes vainglorious assertions of hope."

"He utters words which may amaze us, who are not under the same conditions and have not the same needs but I stick to realities, and the diplomatic conversations are great spirit of co-operation between the two peoples."

It was by friendly means and in spirit of conciliation that Italy has tried to realize the demands of the League, he asserted. "Events, far from shaking my confidence in the League, tend rather to confirm it."

"The nation which is provisionally kept outside has not absented herself," he said with reference to Germany's acceptance of the invitation to collaborate with the commission which is to study revision of the League Council.

Referring to the great franc counterfeiting case in Hungary, he said: "The Hungarian people have proved their ardent desire to shed light on the case. We will see if the facts correspond to that desire—if the penalties are susceptible of satisfying us. But if it is not so—which I do not believe—we cannot content ourselves with a mere appearance of justice, nor lack of it, and will have to resort to an international tribunal, but we hope the penalties will be satisfactory."

"Between Italy and France there are irreconcilable oppositions of interests," he continued. "We have great numbers of Italians on our soil and in the countries under our control. All our active workers to whom we have no reparation to make from an administrative viewpoint."

Predicts Collaboration.

"I have always told the Italians: come amongst us—you will be received as racial brothers who share your blood with ours on the battlefield. I see a great future collaboration between our countries without a hitch." The champion applauded.

We have certain problems to solve," M. Briand resumed. "We shall solve them amicably. I see nothing which will distract the relations of the two countries. Our foreign policy is directed, constantly, by this consideration without excluding that of vigilance. France, the present state of Europe and the world, will constantly be a guiding agent."

Living Cells, 100 to 200 Years Old, Found at Base of Cactus Tree by Carnegie Scientist

Another Botanist Tells of Chemical That Hastens Growth of Potatoes—Explanation of Feeling Hot or Cold.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Assembling in the same old building in the shadow of Independence Hall that it occupied when Benjamin Franklin was President, the American Philosophical Society heard Dr. Daniel T. MacDougal of the Carnegie Institute of Washington tell of plant cells that have been leading an active existence since the subject was found in 1757.

In most plants, Dr. MacDougal stated in his address yesterday, though great longevity may be attained, the individual microscopic cells of which they are made survive only for a few years.

Trees, for example, are composed largely of dead cells, but in the tree cactus of Arizona Dr. MacDougal found a plan in which the original babyhood cells continue to grow and absorb water for 100 or even 200 years. As the principle cause of the plant dying is being blown over by the wind, the cells would survive still longer if the cactus were properly protected.

Changes With Age.

London Paper Refuses Time-Honored Privilege to Distinguished Persons When Subject Is Birth-Control.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., of New York World, and Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, April 23.—The London Times has refused to print a letter supporting the House of Lords resolution favoring birth control, which Lord Buckmaster will introduce next week. This although the letter is signed by 24 prominent men and women, including Dean Inge, Viscountess Grey, Lady Violet Bonham-Carter, Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Arnold Bennett, Prof. Gilbert Murray, Bertrand Russell and J. M. Keynes.

Four generations letters written to the editor have been traditional means of expressing opinions on important subjects. Hence, the interest in the Times' refusal now, which the editor informed the signatories was due to the fact that the letter opposes the policy of the paper.

Other newspapers print the letter today and the Westminster Gazette editorially attack the Times for its "autocratic and absurd" attitude.

Lord Buckmaster's resolution provides that the Government shall withdraw its opposition to the giving of welfare committees of birth control information to married women. The letter endorsed this on the ground, among others, that it is "inhumane and unjust to deny to married women scientific instruction on birth control which they have at least as much right to it as who can and do pay for it" and because "in the absence of such medical information injurious methods of limiting children such as abortion, gambling and drinking appeared to be the main purposes of such places."

To control its patrons and so I took the usual steps to secure the reversion of the dance license as that power rested entirely with the Mayor, although, as usual, the police were held responsible. The Mayor took no action.

Now, on this afternoon in January, the Mayor explained to me that there was a great difference between a seven million dollar hotel and cheap dives. This was his oft-repeated argument.

No one present even pretended to deny that conditions at the hotel were as I reported them to be.

They simply demanded preferences.

They were friends of the Mayor and, therefore, as privilege-demanding individuals, wanted to violate the law without punishment.

The Mayor sent for me and I found one of the owners of the hotel present. He announced that they would save the upper entrance and would close the roof garden, as they intended making alterations; that it was not paying. The year before I assumed office, the caller said, the hotel had made nearly $100,000, but that it had now dropped to almost nothing.

The object being accomplished—the halting of violations and the cessation of dancing—I made no further recommendations and dancing ceased.

Eight weeks later, the same hotel garden resumed dancing, new violations cropped up, and on a busy Saturday night police raiders swooped onto the roof, seized liquor and arrested patrons. This was one of four rather sensational raids of the year, the fund reorganized and placed on an efficient, honest and workmanlike basis.

Again I urged revocation of the dance license. Again the Mayor took no action and again I was helpless. The license never was withdrawn.

Court's Abuse of Arbitrary Power.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial "Jury Trial or Jeffreys" entitled you to the thanks of every American citizen. Every Federal Judge today is a potential Jeffreys, because he possesses exactly the power to comment on the evidence and to persuade or coerce a conviction from a reluctant jury that Jeffreys exercised when he rode the "Bloody Circuit" and condemned more than 1,000 judicial murders in less than three months. It is the same power that enabled his associates, Wilkins, Jones and Levinz, to send Henry Cornish to the gallows and Elizabeth Gaunt to the flames on evidence so flimsy that no jury would have convicted except under judicial coercion; the same power that murdered such men as Sir Harry Vane, Lord Russell, Algernon Sidney, and that was condemned by Col. Rumbold, who did not believe that a part of mankind were born saddled and bridled and the other part booted and spurred to ride them. It is the most despotic and effective power in a judicial system that has shed more innocent blood than any other tribunal on earth, not excluding the revolutionary tribunal during the Reign of Terror.

This arbitrary power should not be given to any Court. The specious plea that it will not be "abused" is worthless, for its very exercise, invading as it does the province of the jury and inducing it to return a verdict which is not its verdict, is the very essence of the Judge's most tyrannical of abuses. Many of the Federal Judges uniformly refuse to exercise this power in any case, but there are many Federal Judges who employ it as effectively, and not much less brutally, than did their English prototype. When exercised, it is never fairly used; always for the purposes of compelling a conviction on evidence insufficient to satisfy the jury of the guilt of the defendant, and this is the astonishing reason given by the committees of the bar association why the practice should be continued.

An illustration of the extent to which a trial judge may go in coercing a verdict is found in the last opinion of the Supreme Court on the subject (Hornung vs. District of Columbia, 254 U. S. 155). In that case the jury was unwilling to convict, and after being out until the next day, the District Judge harangued them in the following Jeffreys-like manner:

"In conclusion, I will say that a failure to bring in a verdict in this case can arise only from a wilful and flagrant disregard of the evidence and the law as I have given it to you, and a violation of your obligation as jurors. Of course, gentlemen, I cannot tell you in so many words to find the defendant guilty, but what I say amounts to that."

The conviction thus coerced was actually affirmed by the Supreme Court. No sane man would say that such a verdict was the verdict of the jury, and this decision absolutely wipes out the jury system. Federal courts, and leaves in its place 12 rubber stamps in the box and one juror on the bench.

ALEXANDER R. RUSSELL.

An Argument for Uncurbed Power.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

LAST night's editorial upon the Dyer Bill set forth a rather startling conception of the historical development and essential nature of trial by jury. The jury trial was not "evolved as a curb upon arbitrary judicial power." Its early popularity was due to the fact that the alternatives were trial by battle and trial by ordeal. Nor is it obviously true that "only when it has been maintained has arbitrary judicial power been restrained." The Civil Law, which prevails in much the greater part of the world, does not know the jury. Finally the intimation that the historical jury system has become decadent in our Federal courts is unwarranted. The common law trial by jury is a trial by Judge and jury—Judge free to command what he gave his instructions orally at the close of counsel's argument. The Federal Government (like the English in this respect) has adhered to the historical conception. The States' departure from it has not been justified by subsequent events. Justice today is more speedy and more certain than Federal in State courts. And the undeniable superiority of the English judicial system over the American is largely attributed to the uncurbed power of the British magistrates.

The danger that Judges will abuse their position seems exaggerated. The Judge is fettered by the necessity of deciding in accordance with known rules and standards. He must publicly set forth the reasons for his decision. Those reasons are subject to the scrutiny and comment of a professor. There are no such checks upon jurors.

If we are to have justice according to law, rather than justice according to whim, it is good sense to give the only person in the court room who is both intelligent and impartial the protection of social interests to the unaided conjecture of twelve sanctified jurors?

GEORGE A. McNULTY.

A SUBSERVIENT CONGRESS.

By a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals of New York the Federal Government is barred from seizing and confiscating vessels beyond the three-mile limit, for the enforcement of prohibition. The court says that treaties fixing a line beyond the recognized jurisdiction of the country within which the Government can police the waters do not authorize the confiscation of vessels of citizens who are subjects of other nations. There must be a law providing for confiscation. That, at least, is the inference.

The expansion of the police zone to 12 miles was a piece of folly, conceived in the fury of zeal to enforce prohibition. It abolished precedents, undermined the freedom of the seas and stretched authority to the breaking point. It resulted in extending the corruption that prevails in the internal effort to enforce prohibition to the Coast Guard and the St. Paul.

The St. Paul Railroad, of which Mr. Ryan was a director, entered into contracts with the Montana Power Co., of which Mr. Ryan was president. He helped negotiate those contracts. The inquiry developed the fact that, though the St. Paul used only 40 per cent of the power contracted for, it paid the power company for 60 per cent.

Pretty expensive power, is it not? Clearly, the St. Paul made a bad trade. Logically enough, then, Mr. Ryan was asked if he thought it right for him to have represented both the St. Paul and the power company in these negotiations. Mr. Ryan saw "nothing improper in it." He might have gone further. He might have said that he was playing a cinch. Whichever side got stung, he could not lose.

Improper or not, Ryan's deportment, like Rockefellers, was a proper way to break a railroad, "proper" being used in the sense of a sure thing.

good taste. Unhappy is the man who, visiting our national shrines, looks upon them with a fastidious eye.

HOW TO BREAK A RAILROAD.

Another eminent gentleman has been telling the Interstate Commerce Commission how they broke the St. Paul.

This witness was John D. Ryan. Like Percy A. Rockefeller, Mr. Ryan was a director of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad. Like Mr. Rockefeller, Mr. Ryan received passes from the St. Paul, which are perquisites a director may legally accept. Unlike Mr. Rockefeller, Mr. Ryan never sold a dead railroad to the St. Paul, pocketing a handsome commission in the transaction, but he did sell power to the St. Paul.

The St. Paul Railroad, of which Mr. Ryan was a director, entered into contracts with the Montana Power Co., of which Mr. Ryan was president. He helped negotiate those contracts. The inquiry developed the fact that, though the St. Paul used only 40 per cent of the power contracted for, it paid the power company for 60 per cent.

MISSOURI'S NEGLECTED FORESTS.

Before Forest Week passes, it is well to call attention to the meaning of the lack of interest by Missouri's State government and people in the State's timber supply.

As has been told in the Post-Dispatch, after the Legislature, in 1925, passed a law creating a forestry division of the Board of Agriculture, the appropriation for the new service was cut out by Gov. Baker, and the Missouri Forestry Association is now paying the salary and expenses of the State Forester, Frederick Dunlap, whose job, according to the Blue Book, will be "to foster the care of and additional plantings of farm timber patches, the board favoring that phrase rather than the more orthodox term, the 'wood lot.'" And how can one man fight forest fires, which during the past year burned up more than 400,000 acres of timber?

That is a step in the right direction, but compared with what other states do for real forestry, it is insignificant. It will help the farmers, but do little or nothing for the conservation and improvement of the millions of acres of forest and cut-over land which must furnish a large part of our future lumber supply. And, due to the fact that the State makes no forestry appropriation, it cannot share in the fund provided by the United States Government to help fight forest fires. Nor can we have a national forest in Missouri without State co-operation.

At present the State's sawmill production is less than 2,000,000 feet of lumber, as compared with over 7,000,000 in 1889. The United States Forest Service estimates that, if properly managed, Missouri's forest acres would produce annually three times the present consumption of lumber.

As to this annual consumption of lumber, the excess freight charges on the 6,000,000 feet we are compelled to import would go far towards establishing a real forestry service, which would pay for itself and be a source of profit indefinitely. In addition to this, it would preserve our Ozark Mountain region in all its beauty, conserve our rainfall, diminishing the destruction caused by drouths, and help the State's industries in many ways.

THE PURE OF HEART WEEP.

The pure of heart must have grieved when they read in the papers yesterday about the goings-on at Jefferson City. To witness the State Marketing Bureau in such a vicious proceeding is truly an unhappy experience.

All our dignitaries were there, the men and women to whom we look for light and leading up the steep passes to Better Things. The Governor himself was there, and playing the stellar role, too. Whose was the hand that dipped into the sack and pulled forth the winning numbers? None other than the Governor's. There were many awards, but the interest naturally centered on the capital prize, a 40-acre tract of land on the guilty edge of Poplar Bluff.

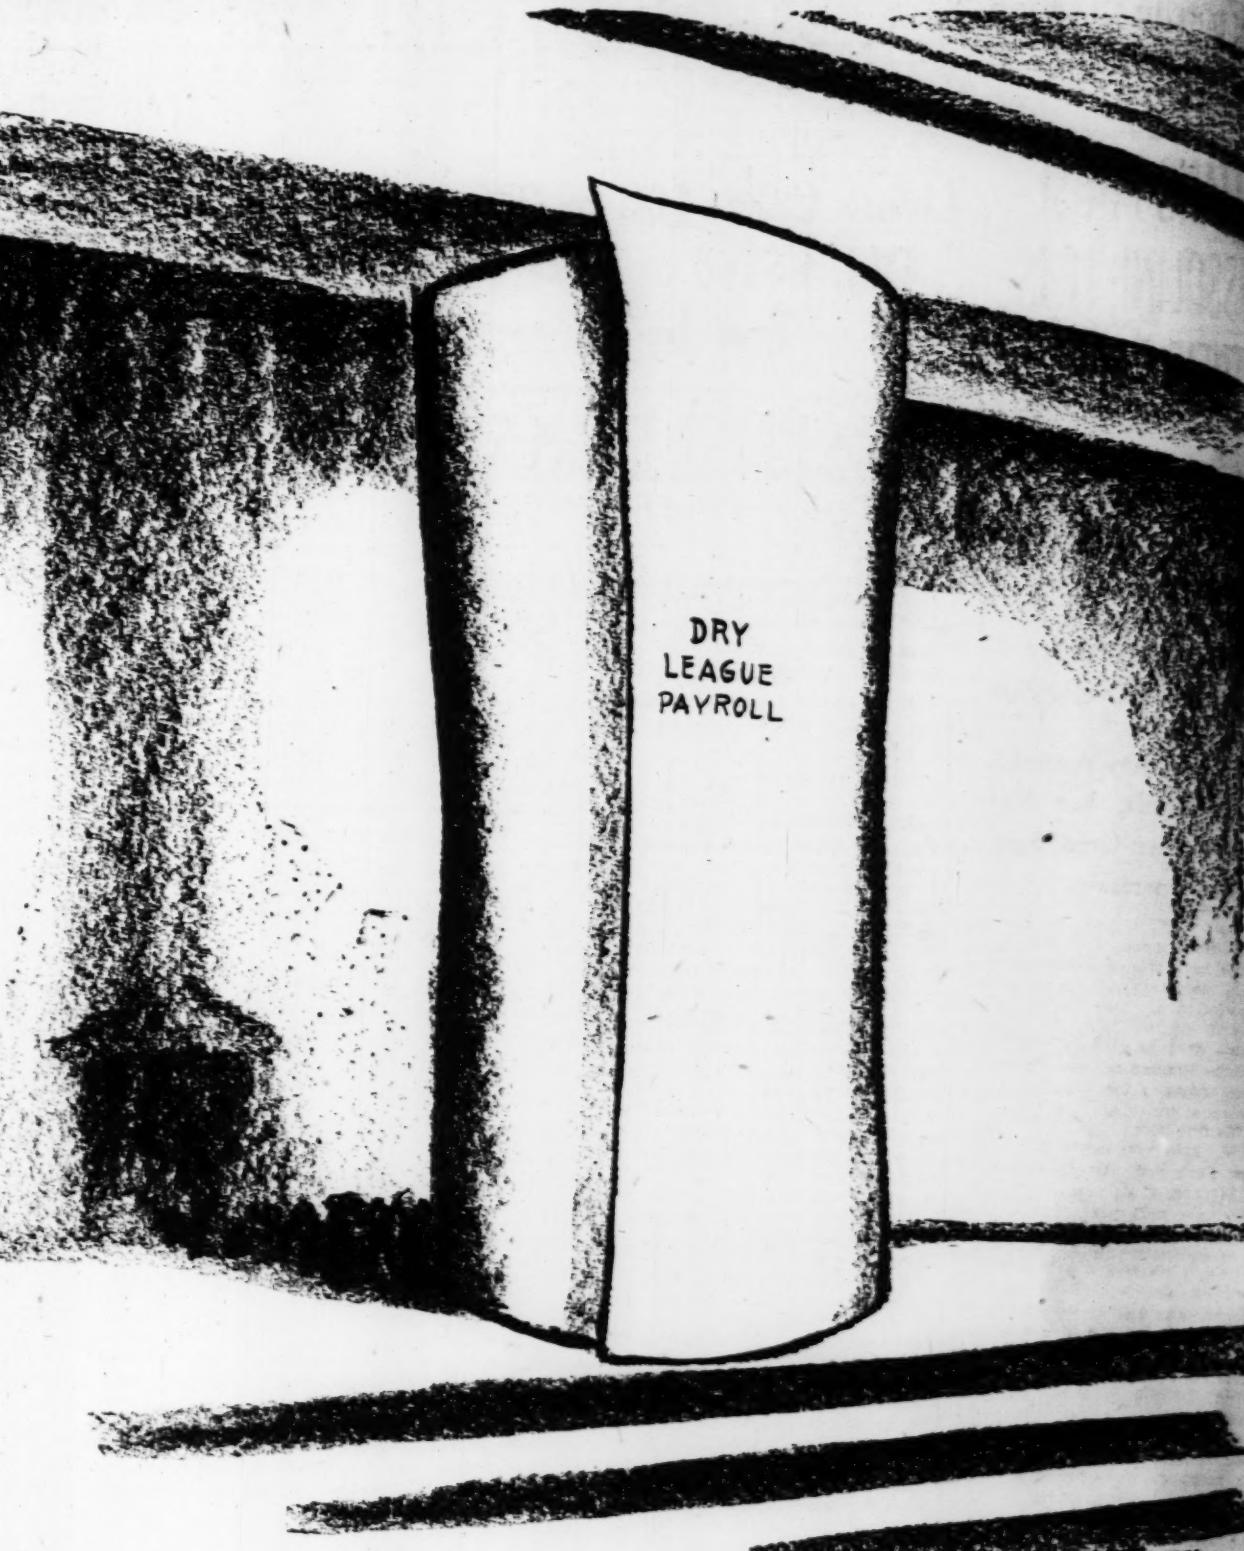

The air was tense when the piece de resistance was announced. Beads of avarice glistened on throbbing brows. The faces of men were pale and haggard, and the faces of the women were awful. They were all gripped in the lust for gain. The sizzling fever surged through every vein. You know how it is as the whirling wheel's momentum wanes and the ball bobs tantalizingly from niche to niche, or capers nimbly around the rim, now jabbing you with the needle of hope, again leaving you in the slough of despond and finally settling in somebody else's groove. That was precisely the atmosphere at the State Marketing Bureau's lottery. A shocking, sinful and lawless affair.

What does the State of Missouri mean by thus sponsoring and practicing gambling on a 40-acre scale? How do the officers of the State justify this horrid youth-corrupting matinee?

You can bet your entire roll that the pure of heart are grieved. They always are grieved.

TURN ABOUT IS FAIR PLAY.

UNREST.

Spring moonlight raises havoc in my blood, I who am deeply rooted as a tree, And from each gurgling foot-print in the mud

Crawl germs of wanderlust to mock at me, Spring breezes blow from out the wanton South.

Soft as the breath of a new-wedded bride;

A thousand miles away the river's mouth Lifts hungry lips to kiss the May moon's tide.

These cursed birds that sound so sweet to you

Keep chirping at me. "Man, if you were free,

We'll tell you what's the first thing you would do,

You'd take the long, long road that leads to sea!"

E. LESLIE SPAULDING.

McGregor, Ia.

We have been watching to see what the consequences of having a forty-nine state would be. That is, whether or not it would get us all so hopelessly mixed up that we would not know where one state begins and another ends. We had remembered that many years ago when the Rev. Mr. Hicks postulated a purely supposititious plane, that is, Vulcan, and attributed to it most of our natural phenomena, people hereabouts forgot which plane was real and which were unreal. Probably we have not entirely dissociated them even now. At any rate, the Globe-Democrat set out yesterday to tell us how the Missouri River to sea would be straight-jacketed at the new waterworks, and it says:

"And your house, Jeanne? Did you have a bathtub?"

"Oh, no, mademoiselle!"

"What? No bathtub?"

"No, mademoiselle; they do not build bathrooms in France."

That settled it. The Arcadian France of the river dreams lacked electricity, plumbing and beefsteaks sufficient to satisfy the standards of an American wage-earner. Hence they settled in Jersey within commuting distance of New York where a delicious little beefsteak for two" could be had for 80 cents.

The proposed work is planned to keep a rigid band on the Missouri side of the river and prevent the river from eating out the shores above the new plant, thus causing the intakes and engine pits to either become immersed in the river or left high and dry.

The United States Government had decided to change the channel several miles above the plant, throwing it around a curve to the north of Bonneville Island, instead of to the south of the island, to make the river navigable.

The proposed plan as explained to Pritchard by the Government engineer in charge of the work will eventually eliminate all the flow from the Missouri side of the island, drying up several miles of the present river bed.

The change in the current will bring the river around the island against the Missouri side about 6500 feet above the waterworks.

What state does the Globe think of as lying across the river from this Missouri side? Is it the forty-nine state?

They had one-way traffic in Pompeii. The wheels of the chariots fit into deep ruts in the stone pavement, and you were likely arrested if you got out of the ruts. At any rate, there was none of this darting in and out of the traffic such as is practiced by Fords, though the shouting of the charioteers must have been dreadful when some fellow stopped to talk to his girl.

The difference between the city and country is that Spring in the one place is a time when you change your clothes and in the other place is a change of season.

A LESSON IN PATRIOTISM.

Synopsis of story in the Saturday Evening Propaganda. Francois and Jeanne, having accumulated a tidy sum of good American dollars in France, return to France, the land of their birth, to live happily ever after. The experience is painful Odyssey of disillusionment, and after two months return to America. The following dialogue with their American patroness discloses the reason for their adherence to America:

"And is there plenty of employment in France?"

"Wherever I went, yes; both in industry and construction; but it took so many francs to buy anything."

Beefsteaks, for example, Francois, accustomed to live on the American model, loved a rich, thick, juicy Delmonico or porterhouse.

"But would you believe it, mademoiselle when I went into a butcher shop and asked for a porterhouse the butcher didn't know what I meant."

"Pointers! Pointers!" I shouted.

"Here I'll show you on the carcass. It's a coupe americaine!" But the butcher refused to cut his meat that way; it was not thus they cut beef in France. Upon which Francois blew up; he advised the butcher to go to the devil, who at least could show him a good American cut. Nevertheless, he did not get his porterhouse.

"And what do the French workers do?"

"They do without," said Francois promptly. But, of course, they had not been nourished on porterhouse steaks.

"Mr. Jefferson appears like a worker that has married the widow of a dead libertine and who, by economy and frugality, has cleared off his estate, repaid his children happy."

Mr. Jefferson pointed out that by 1860, $600,000 toward erection of a gymnasium for Elmhurst College, Elmhurst, Ill., was also announced. Deficiencies in last year's budget of $100,000 were to be met by the Education Fund.

AMERICANS TO ENTER EUROPEAN COLLEGES

Summer School Courses at Oxford, Dublin and Berlin Lure Hundreds.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Several old world universities, for centuries the mecca of the Abelards and Erasmuses of every country, will this summer throw open their gates to bands of Western pilgrims.

Oxford will take under the shadow of its "dreaming spires" old American women, teachers and college graduates. A summer school, on the American plan, will offer courses in English literature and history at four of the women's colleges.

Trinity College, Dublin, will receive up to 120 men and women, who may study the social sciences, the humanities or languages, including Gaelic. It will be held July 15 to Aug. 26.

Berlin offers to an unlimited number of Americans courses in German language and culture, or in the country's educational and social problems.

"Applications have come from every part of the country," said Miss Florence Lovell, international secretary of the American Association of University Women, in the Institute of International Education and the English college authorities have arranged for these first European summer schools.

Belfry, Mont., and Las Vegas, N. M., have responded along with New York and New England.

Women of all ages, from those who have been teaching 50 years to this year's college graduates, have shown themselves eager to journey to Oxford."

These summer schools are a new departure in the whole plan of establishing international educational relations said Miss Katherine Savel, secretary of the Students' Bureau of the Institute of International Education.

The plan has meant, since its start immediately after the war, the exchange of scholarship and fellowship students, first between this country and France, then also with Germany, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

These summer schools, as they are not on a scholarship and therefore competitive basis, offer on a less limited scale the same sort of opportunities of foreign study to American students.

With foreign exchange so favorable to Americans, the price of these summer schools is extremely moderate."

PUBLIC QUESTION CLUB DINNER

Dr. George Stephens of Washington and Other Speakers Heard.

The Public Question Club, composed of 110 business and professional men, held its closing dinner of the 1925-26 season last night at the Forest Park Hotel. For the first time in the 21 years of the organization, women were guests.

Robert C. Goode presided, and the theme for discussion was "Is American Democracy Disintegrating?"

The principal speakers were Dr. G. W. Stephenson of Washington University, Elliott R. Coulter and William R. Schneider. Three-minute speakers included Rabbi Louis Witt, Nelson Cuniff, Edward K. Love, the Rev. Father R. J. Wilbur, E. M. Grossman, William Barrett Frost, Henry Robbins, the Rev. Dwight Hamlin and Dr. Gustav Lippmann.

RAISING EDUCATION FUND

Contributions Reported at Conference of Evangelical Church.

Pledges of $6000 toward a $300,000 fund for Eden Seminary were made by lay and pastoral delegates at the thirty-ninth annual Missouri Conference of the Evangelical Church yesterday at St. Louis' Evangelical Church.

A gift of $25,000 by W. A. Wile of Chicago toward erection of a gymnasium for Elmhurst College, Elmhurst, Ill., was also announced. Deficiencies in last year's budget, with failure of 85 per cent of churches to raise full quota were noted. The Education Board was instructed to survey possibilities of purchasing Central College at Lexington, Mo., and raising $100,000 to $500,000 to maintain it as a junior college for girls.

Mr. Hirst points out that by 1805 "2,000,000 of debt had been paid off and the Treasury had a substantial surplus."

KITCHEN LITERATURE

From the New York Times.

THERE are implications in the story of collector's cook books to sadden Turkey. Here is a lady who has amassed cook books for the last 10 years, but now about to sell them at auction. It is the first sale of the kind to be made in America, but one fears it will not be the last.

For cook books, along with other valuable documents, have now reached the point of distinction and rarity where they are to be preserved for posterity. Kitchens have shrunk in size and diversity. Cooks have shrunk in size and died in number, and the thick, encyclopedic books of recipes are going too.

ENGLAND'S CONSERVATISM

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

THE nationalization of the Bank of England is proposed in a bill presented to the House of Commons by Mr. John L. Parker, a Labor member, and is supported by other Labor members. That is enough to give shock to the "Old Lady of Threadneedle street." Of course, the bill has no possible effect on the House, but the very idea of introducing such a measure shows that old England has gone from the path of conservatism.

LONDON CHILDREN WEAR

FASHIONS OF LONG AGO

Spring Dresses Are Short and Often Have Sash and Ribbon Effect.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 23.—Children's attire of long ago has been adopted by Mayfair modistes for some of the spring fashions for the modern society miss. The feature of these are the old-fashioned sash and ribbons which was worn by young girls over a white muslin frock. The leading fashions are fairly short, often designed with petals and waist line. Many of the sashes have a thread of gold or silver in the center.

Other youthful looking dresses carry two narrow pieces of silver ribbon many feet long placed side by side down the middle and ending near the shoe top. In others, the long ribbons are partly veiled by an overdress of colored georgette.

BERLIN, April 23.—Federal Judge Wolverton today ruled that under section 308 of the Veterans' Act of 1924, the war risk insurance policy of any ex-service man who has had temporary total disability rating during the life of the policy does not lapse through failure of the veteran to pay premiums. The ruling was said to be the first of its nature in the United States, and observers of the case estimated that it would automatically put approximately $1,000,000 worth of war risk insurance policies back into effect.

WOULD REARRANGE
TRAFFIC DOWNTOWN

Director Brooks for More One-Way Streets and Automatic Signals.

Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks, in an address last night at the annual dinner of the Associated Retailers, at the Columbia Club, described a rearrangement of traffic on downtown streets, which he has under consideration, and which he estimates would increase capacity of the streets 25 to 50 per cent.

His idea is to make all thoroughfares in the area bounded by Market street, Franklin avenue, Twelfth boulevard and the river one-way streets, except possibly Washington avenue and Broadway. In addition, he would install automatic signals at the stop-go variety, synchronized to operate simultaneously. This would relieve 50 or more traffic policemen for duty elsewhere.

This plan, Director Brooks said, would double the number of traffic lanes in each street, in effect, thus permitting street cars to go faster, which in turn would cause all vehicles to move through the district more quickly.

Effect on Street Railways.

Cost to the street railway system of relocating its tracks might be $1,000,000, the Director declared, but he explained the street cars could increase their average speed downtown from two or three miles an hour to approach the average speed for the entire system of about 10 miles an hour, which would mean a saving for the trolley company.

Loading platforms for street cars in Twelfth boulevard, similar to the new ones on Union boulevard opposite Soldan High School, are contemplated for Twelfth boulevard, at Market, Pine and Locust streets and Washington avenue, in the Director's plan.

Has Levee Parking Scheme.

Director Brooks told the retailers of another scheme he has been seeking to work out, in conjunction with the Automobile Club of Missouri, for parking space for about 4,000 automobiles on the levee, for several blocks north of Washington avenue and south of Market street. His idea is that merchants, downtown, whose customers, among others, would benefit by provision of such a place where they need not fear parking overtime, could provide a free bus service to carry all users to and from the business district.

It might be found feasible to charge perhaps 15 cents a day to park there, to income defraying cost of watchmen and maintenance. Director Brooks hopes the automobile club and Associated Retailers may furnish funds to start this plan.

The speaker stated the opinion that there will be no downtown shopping district in 15 years if traffic congestion is not relieved. He estimated that congestion is costing downtown merchants a daily loss of $100,000 in business, and quoted a report that it causes a daily loss of $2 for each taxicab operating. Expressing hope that the Board of Aldermen will include in the new municipal budget a $47,000 appropriation for a city traffic engineer, the Director said work of this official would save business interests here $1,000,000 this year.

For Interurban Bus Terminals.

Interurban bus terminals should be established to the south and north of the shopping district, Director Brooks said, to keep these buses out of the congestion, and routing of merchandise delivery trucks should be changed. He suggested that the retailers canvas their customers to learn the proportion using street cars, busses, private automobiles. The number of automobiles in St. Louis, he added, increased from 28,731 in 1917 to 142,000 last year.

John G. Lonsdale, president of the National Bank of Commerce, addressing the retailers, declared business conditions now do not warrant pessimism about the future, although "the curbside prophet already has us headed for the doldrums." The second quarter, he opened more auspiciously than the first, he averred, referring to railroad loadings, employment records, bank clearings and building permits here. Cautioning against permitting "fear-heating of the tone-tons of Wall Street" from befuddling brains, he interrupted prosperity for eternity and the slightest necessity of cutting out to get or stimulate business leaves us in a blue funk of despair."

Cramer, president of B. Nease & Bros. Dry Goods Co., was elected president of the Associated Retailers.

DETECTIVES SPOIL A SWINDLE

Save Country Visitor's $36 From Confidence Man.

Three detectives interrupted a confidence game last night when they observed a police character on downtown Olive street, with Elmer Martin of Seymour, Mo. The confidence man handed Martin $36 as they approached.

Martin related that the stranger had taken him for a walk from the station. They met a third man, who began matching pennies awhile, and then agreed to meet them later to determine if they could show money with his while, whereupon Martin had turned over $36 to the accomplice, who was held pending application for a

MISSING SHIP REACHES PORT AFTER 130 DAYS

Craft Had Been Becalmed in Mid-Ocean—Water Supply Nearly Gone When Rain Saved Crew.

SEINES SUPPLIED FISH FOR FOOD

Tobacco Was Used Up, and Men Smoked Tea and Beans—Voyage Started as a Race.

By the Associated Press.
SAN PEDRO, Cal., April 23.—The four-masted schooner Irene, which came into port yesterday after being given up for lost, is being prepared to return to the serving of commerce.

While the half-starved crew recovered from the effects of weeks of short rations, the vessel's master, Capt. Allen E. Rosendal, steered toward the disposal of the ship's cargo of lumber, originally bound for Florida, delivery when the steamer sailed from Gray's Harbor, Wash., 130 days ago.

Arrival of the schooner yesterday barely cheated death, which had grimly stalked the ship for weeks. Two sailors, Fred Dale and G. L. Petersen, had broken under the meager diet and were critically ill in their bunks when port was reached.

Caught Rain Water.

Blew far to sea by perverse winds and then becalmed in the South Seas, the vessel's crew escaped death from starvation and thirst only through good fortune that had failed them in every other phase of their voyage. When they were ready for the end, with less than five gallons of fresh water left in the storage tanks, the sky darkened and torrents of rain struck the vessel. Rain caught in sails replenished the supply of drinking water.

The seining of 2000 pounds of sea food kept them from starving. Ten cans of tomatoes and a barrel of rainwater remained yesterday of the 30 days' supplies carried when it started its voyage.

A foul bottom, together with a heavy load, aggravated the schooner's hard luck. According to Capt. Rosendal, the ship had not been on dry dock for 16 months before it started its trip, and in the tropic more sea life attached itself to the bottom.

While playing penultimate April 9, Capt. Rosendal and his wife, who made the trip with him, heard the announcement of a radio station in Oakland, Cal., say that although the Alvena, a sister ship of the Irene, had arrived safely at Miami, the latter apparently had been lost at the west of the Oregon coast.

The Irene left Gray's Harbor Dec. 14 last on what was to have been a race with the Alvena. Although the latter had departed six days earlier, the Irene was looked upon as the favorite, being a faster vessel.

Bar-Bound for Week.

A succession of head winds, punctuated with calms, drove the vessel thousands of miles off her course. She was bar-bound for a week before making the open sea. Once outside the bar, the vessel encountered a stiff southeastern wind and was carried several thousand miles to the west of the Oregon coast. The expected northwest wind did not come and when the Irene hauled about on the port tack she was opposed by southerly winds.

When the food and water supply began to get low everyone was placed on shorter rations. The heavy head winds did not cease and it was 30 days before the Irene reached the lower California coast. Capt. Rosendal decided to cross the Equator and attempt to pick up the trade winds approaching the Panama Canal from the coast of Ecuador. Upon reaching the Equator belt, the Irene ran into rain squalls during which the water tanks were filled.

Caught in a swift westerly sea, the vessel was shoved westward to longitude 124, closer to Honolulu than Panama.

"Would have started to finish the trip around the Horn," said Capt. Rosendal, "but we didn't have sufficient food for so long a trip, so I decided to head to Honolulu to obtain supplies. About this time the wind came up from the southwest and I decided to make the run to San Pedro."

Beans for Tobacco.

When the schooner dropped anchor she had but one and a half barrels of water left.

One of the worst features of the claim, the crew unanimously agreed, was that the tobacco supply ran out more than a month ago. Hops, tea and even beans were smoked in pipes. The last smoke Capt. Rosendal had was a washed out chew of tobacco. The fragments were dried in the sun after the washing and enjoyed immensely, he said.

Blown far to sea by perverse winds and then becalmed in the South Seas, the vessel's crew escaped death from starvation and thirst only through good fortune that had failed them in every other phase of their voyage. When they were ready for the end, with less than a million of fresh water left in the storage tanks, the sky darkened and torrents of rain struck the ship. Rain caught in sails replenished the supply of drinking water.

The weighing of 2000 pounds of food kept them from starving. Two cans of tomatoes and a barrel of rainwater remained yesterday of the 90 days' supplies carried when started its voyage.

Once outside the "bar-bound" circle, she had a stiff southwest wind and was carried several thousand miles to the west of the Oregon coast. The expected northwest wind did not come, and when the Irene hauled about on the port tack she was opposed by southerly winds.

To Dismiss Manslaughter Charge
LOS ANGELES, April 23.—Prosecuting officers have announced they would ask for the dismissal of charges against Charles Bucknall, former Pasadena building inspector, accused of manslaughter in connection with the collapse of a grand stand during the annual tournament of roses at Pasadena New Year's day. The jury hearing the case disagreed Wednesday and was discharged. The same jury convicted Paul F. Maloney, builder of the grand stand, on a manslaughter charge.

DOCTORS REPORT X-RAY ASSISTS TO FORM VITAMINES

St. Louisans Give American Medical Association Result of Research Into Cause of Cancer.

HEART DISEASE
FAST INCREASING

Gold Medal Given New Orleans Professor for Bacteriological Work — Problem of the Unfit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DALLAS, Tex., April 23.—The significant news that the formation of vitamin B, most commonly found in profusion in yeast, and to some extent also of vitamin A, found in cod liver oil, may be induced by exposure to the X-ray, was announced by Drs. M. T. Burrows and E. C. Ernst of St. Louis, before the meeting of the American Medical Association here yesterday. This work was undertaken in connection with studies on the cause of cancer and is planned to show to what extent cancer may be controlled by modifying the activities of the body.

Solitary cysts of bone, collections of fluid within the bones, causing them to give pain and become weak, are the result of infection with germs which have a peculiar affinity for bone tissue. The address of Dr. Dallas B. Phemister of Chicago, chairman of the section on surgery, was devoted to expounding this theory, supported by a demonstration that the condition is the result of mechanical causes or some change in the nature of the bone tissue due to incidents of birth.

Recognizing that heart disease is responsible for death and disability to a far greater extent than formerly, an entire session of the section on the practice of medicine was devoted to a discussion of such conditions as are causing the important fact that practically all heart disease is the result of infection of the heart muscle, valves or blood vessels coming from points elsewhere in the body.

Neighboring Bacteria.

Aldo Castellani of New Orleans, recently made professor of tropical diseases in Tulane University, and recognized as one of the world's authorities in this field, received a gold medal in the scientific exhibit for a demonstration of recent discoveries concerning the nature of the relation of bacteria to human disease. Castellani says that bacteria may sometimes live with other bacteria on friendly terms but that in other circumstances may oppose each other much as might quarreling neighbors. The environment of the germ plays a large part in changing its nature or its activities, he says. A germ which, living alone, will produce acid but never gas in certain carbon compounds, may be put with another germ which will produce neither acid nor gas when alone in such an environment and together the combination will produce fermentation and acid. A disease of the mouth producing severe inflammation seems to be due to a close association between two organisms which produce this disease when living together although the disease does not appear in the presence of either alone.

Problem of the Unfit.

The discussion of the unfit was led by Dr. Maxcy of Ravenna of Columbia, head of the section of preventive medicine and public health. He referred to the present population growth, stating that in 1850 the world's population was about $50,000,000 and in the next 100 years it had doubled. He stated that morons and the subnormal propagate much faster than the higher classes and that therefore birth control was practical where it should be. He believes the subnormals should be curbed, but was at a loss to know just how it should be done.

The saving of the incompetents is of questionable value and in many cases positively harmful to the race, he said. "But present medical science does not enable us to select those who will fit in and therefore should be saved."

Washington was selected as the place of the 1927 meeting of the association and Dr. James Jackson of Kansas City, discoverer of Jackson's membrane within the abdomen and associated disorders of the intestinal tract, was chosen president-elect to take office at the next meeting, succeeding Dr. Wondell Phillips.

Dr. John O. McReynolds of Dallas was elected vice president, Dr. Otto West of Chicago, secretary, and Dr. F. C. Warnings of Grand Rapids, Mich., speaker of the House.

After debating the question of expert medical testimony in court cases, the association adopted a resolution favoring the principle that such witness be appointed by the Court, be paid out of public funds and submit written reports.

GOVERNOR PRINCIPAL SPEAKER AT G. O. P. DINNER AT MOBERLY

Baker Urges Square Deal for All Citizens and Strict Enforcement of Law.

MOBERLY, Mo., April 23.—Only one avowed candidate for a Republican nomination in Missouri spoke at the Republican banquet held in Moberly last night, which was styled as the unofficial opening of the campaign. This was Tom Brown of Jefferson City, chairman of the Public Service Commission, who has announced, unofficially, that he will be a candidate for the nomination for the governorship in 1928. The banquet was in honor of Gov. Baker, who was the principal speaker.

W. O. Atkison of Butler, former member of Congress, and an avowed candidate for the nomination for the United States Senate, was present, but was not called upon to speak. Senator George H. Williams and David M. Proctor of Kansas City were unable to attend the meeting. Many State officials attended the meeting which was presided over by Dr. E. B. Clements of Macon, National committeeman. If Missouri is to be kept Republican, members of the party must not waver from the principles of the Declaration of Independence; they must retain the confidence of the people and must give everyone "a square deal": of rice holders should be honest, sober and industrious, and there must be economy in the expenditure of public funds," said Gov. Baker in his address.

In discussing law enforcement the Governor said:

"No party can be ultimately successful whose officials, themselves, are not law-abiding citizens, and being law-abiding citizens, of course, they will make an effort to enforce all laws that come under their jurisdiction. There can be no excuse whatever for a public official winking at the violation of the law."

Physicians Say
Iodine for Goitre

Natural Iodine, the right kind of iodine, comes from the sea, and there is just enough of it in Ocean-O, the deep sea water treatment for those who have goitre or thyroid gland trouble.

Ocean-O is nothing but deep sea water in a very concentrated form and as one teaspoonful in a glass of water constitutes a dose, a 10-ounce bottle, which you can get from Walgreen Drug Stores or any pharmacist anywhere, lasts a long time.

As a gland rejuvenator Ocean-O is indicated, because it contains exactly the same elements as alkaline revitalizing tonics as good as Ocean-O. Amercian people are demanding it and bear in mind if it doesn't help any run because it is lacking in natural mineral elements you can have your money back.

Thousands of women at the changing time of life are in danger of high blood pressure. It is caused by poisonous waste matter accumulating in the system or the weakening of one or more organs. This forces the heart to do more work and raises the blood pressure.

The symptoms are dizziness, shortness of breath, head pains, flushed face, nervousness or sleeplessness. These symptoms must be treated and stopped for everyone. It brings on Bright's disease, dropsy and often sudden death. It is too dangerous and quick acting to do without great success.

Being a purely vegetable medicine it contains the valuable muscle and bone forming elements found in the grain and whole milk. Raises happy, robust children. Nutritious and easily assimilated. Prepared at home by stirring the powder in hot or cold water. No cooking.

QUIT WOMEN'S C. OF C.
OVER ELECTION ROW

Two Candidates and 16 Sympathizers Withdraw When New Members Are Barred.

Dissension between two factions of the Women's Chamber of Commerce has culminated with the resignation from membership of Mrs. J. T. Addis of 3924 Juniper street who was a candidate for president at the coming election, and Mrs. Carolyn Rens, who was a candidate for recording secretary. Sixteen sympathizers also have resigned.

Considerable support had been obtained for the ticket headed by Mrs. Addis, who had been first vice president, and on which Mrs. Louis J. Brooks, who was active in May or Miller's campaign, was placed to succeed Mrs. Addis. Mrs. N. A. McMillan was proposed for auditor and Mrs. W. H. F. Blume was running for treasurer.

Opposing was the "Administration" faction, running Mrs. Adolphine Neuville for president.

Mrs. J. E. Allen for vice president.

Mrs. J. Jamison for recording secretary.

Mrs. Louise Arp for treasurer and Mrs. L. F. Wilcox for auditor.

Cause of the Dissension.

Following what they said had been a practice in the organization, Mrs. Addis solicited 16 to become members, with the expectation they would vote for her ticket.

In a number of cases blocks of memberships were paid for and given to clubs and other groups for distribution among their members.

When Mrs. Max Ruler, chairman of the Membership Committee and friendly to Mrs. Addis, sought to report the addition of 215 members at the recent April meeting, Mrs. Maurice Sternberger, president of the Chamber, refused to recognize her and the effect has been to keep 215 women from participating in the election which will be held May 6. There was a heated discussion at this meeting.

In the case of 50 of the 215, their dues had been paid up to next October, but at a meeting of the Nominating Committee, under the decision of the parliamentarian, it was ruled they could not vote in the election.

Today Mrs. Ruler, who was secretary and vice president, and 15 other members sympathizing with Mrs.
Addis, resigned. Mrs. Neuville is third vice president, her term in that office having a year to run.

Mrs. Brooks said she and Mrs.
McMillan had not had a chance to consider whether they would resign. She declared they had given the ticket because Mrs. Addis and Mrs. Rens had done splendid work for the recent Woman's National Education which Mrs.
Brooks promoted. Mrs. Brooks declared that she was considering running for Alderman, in answer to a report emanating from the administration faction that she wanted the support of a large body of women in that race.

Mrs. Addis is planning a new civic organization.

FORD BUYS OLD BOAT

WELLESLEY, Mass., April 23.—
Henry Ford's latest antique is a badly warped, leaky old row boat.

Through his representative, William Taylor, the automobile manufacturer acquired it yesterday for $5. Taylor espied the antiquated boat in the yard of William Diehl, Everyman. The purchase saved the boat from the junk pile, and it will be sent to Sudbury to join the collection of New England relics which Ford is collecting there.

"I want to tell you what your

Some time ago, I had a red, sealy rash between my fingers that came from using too much harsh soap and soap powder. It itched, badly, especially at night. I am a housekeeper and every time I had to put my hands in water

I had used it for about two months, my trouble was completely cured."

WHAT IS MEANT BY "CHIC"?

What are the subtle qualities which give it such importance to the well-dressed woman?

My analysis of it as applied to this Spring's offerings.

By Sarah Van Rensselaer

A strike of approximately half of the 2000 Union painters in St. Louis is expected May 1 as a result of the resistance of the Master House Painters' and Decorators' Association to demands by the union for a 50 cents a day wage increase.

The wage demand, recently submitted to the employers, is based on an eight-hour day and is an increase of 7½ cents over the present scale of $1.30 an hour. Employers were also asked for an expression on a five-day week.

Representatives of the Master Painters' Association have declined to discuss both demands. They have told union leaders that no wage increase in the present 44-hour week will be granted. The association employs about half the union membership, the remainder working for so-called independent contractors.

Officers of the Painters' District Council announced this week that 90 percent of the independent contractors had agreed to the wage demand and to a five-day week during the slack period, which runs approximately from Nov. 1 to March 1.

The Master Painters' Association is affiliated with the Associated Building Interests of St. Louis which has been successful in opposing demands for increased wages.

Demands by members of the Asbestos Workers' Union, an organization of about 250 men, for an increase of 7½ cents an hour over the present scale of $1.25, also await settlement before May 1. This demand also will be resisted by employers have indicated.

In these items, sometimes called accessories, but really necessities, there is all the difference in the world between "chic" and mere "style."

A silken "combination" for instance, while destined only for the purpose of a sport, can be a thing of exquisite individuality, releasing one's self-enjoyment of luxury—or it can be a hideously vulgar thing without the least charm.

The French designers know so well the dainty balance between "chic" and "style." To them we must go for inspirations, but fortunately for us—I am thinking of import prices—we have American manufacturers who give us French lingerie at domestic prices.

To be "chic" one must also know what's what for different occasions—for street, for tea-time, for evening, for sports. How elegant it is to be uniformly gowned.

In lingerie, hosey and gloves, one must have the proper outfit. To go tramping in gauzy evening hose is to make oneself conspicuous. Of course, one always wants to be seen, but it is important how one is seen.

A man I know recently took a girl out walking at a country house weekend. She had a very smart sports costume and sports shoes but the gauziness evening hose instead of a more durable weight. The hour's jaunt was a series of her examinations of the hose. The boy might be wrecked by the woodlands, trees, bushes, etc. The man was thoroughly disgusted, and I don't blame him. "Never again" he might well have said—and I suppose he did, for he never went near her the rest of the weekend.

To be a "clinging vine" is all right on occasion, but not on hikes.

So it is with the other intimacies of woman's costume. They must be beyond question. The right gloves, the right lingerie, the right hosey. To retain the silhouette, one's underthings must conform to the occasion. Sheet for the climbing towns—sturdy for sports wear.

In my wanderings around to different openings and to the shops and to the display rooms of the leading manufacturers, I am pleased to report to my readers, everywhere, that I can recommend one concern which happily knows how to combine both "chic" and economy, likewise a concern which has both the artistic and commercial sense to bring to Paris the most adorable accessories and make them of materials which wear and wear.

To this concern, so well known to you all, Julius Kayser & Co. of New York, "the latest thing" is not so all-important as to overshadow the "right thing" and its staff keeps so close to Paris happenings and is so mature in judgment that it follows the fashion fad of the moment, but offers always that rare thing of elegance, that height of sophistication—simplicity. It is indeed the whole secret of "chic."

It takes a concern like Julius Kayser & Co. to combine "chic" with an equally important consideration—economy. Being one of the oldest houses in the silk field, being a house of great financial resources, it is paradoxically an interpreter of the mode in one division of endeavor, yet "old-fashioned" in another.

It is "old-fashioned" in offering 100% pure silk and 100% pure dyes. It is "old-fashioned" in offering economy. Yet without one can often sacrifice to another. A unique combination, I think.

Specializing in the three things which touch a woman's skin—lingerie, hosey and gloves—Julius Kayser & Co. has won a host of friends the nation over. Its greatest asset is the confidence it has placed in the part of women everywhere to interpret the Kayser label to give them both the mode and economy. To outfit oneself with Kayser lingerie, gloves and hosey is to have the satisfaction of always being "chic" never overstepping the bounds of good taste, yet never being a frump—or worse, a "faddist."

I recommend your inspection of the spring offerings by Kayser. You will be delighted with the new suggestions.

"Italian" Silk
Underwear

The Spring creations of Italian* silk underthings are distinctive in style—durability and loveliness.

For the slim silhouette of today there are dansettes, chemises—also nightrobes and pajamas—each of enticing pastel shades... some ribboned and frilled with Parisian daintiness—others subtle in their simplicity.

Here you will find those alluring underthings of almost invisible nothingness for the younger person—and garments cut full and plainly tailored for the more conservative.

Carried-From-Home Lunch Appeals to Many Workers

Circumstances Often Make it Necessary for Employed Men and Women to Carry Lunch Boxes.

THOSE of us who live in large or even medium-sized cities or even in the country find it is more economical in time and health to take advantage of the good food served by the standard restaurants than to carry lunch from home. These restaurants usually make a specialty of fresh eggs and vegetables and the wage earner who patronized them has the advantage of change of scene and not food.

However, there will always be certain conditions and circumstances which make a carried-from-home lunch a necessity, so that it is well worth while to know how to plan, prepare and pack the type of lunch box meal calculated to give the best results in nutrition and health.

So when planning a lunch meal, ask first of all if you may have the privilege of making fresh coffee or tea or coffee, according to your tastes. You may have to provide your own hot soup or beverage, so for a thermos containing a hot drink in the middle of the day are necessary. The stomach is roused from lethargy, the nerves are relaxed and the whole system made ready to do better justice to the demands contained in the lunch basket. This is especially true for desk workers.

On the other hand, more active exertions, such as factory work, will just as loudly for a dash of rest. The reason for this is that the active muscular exertion has been excessive, used just the right amount of tissue to make the body ready for a good meal and the induction of hot fluid is one of the best ways of insuring the digestion of this meal.

Now for the other foods in the lunch box.

Let the portions be ample, but the most exquisite daintiness of preparation be in evidence. Sandwiches cut from a good-sized loaf will be more satisfying than the dainty shreds of thin bread and butter quite appropriate for afternoon tea. Both pieces of bread should be buttered for the worker must be able to count on ample nourishment from the contents of his box, and fresh butter provides not only fat for energy and nerve tone, but the important growth promoting vitamin as well.

Let the sandwich fillings be as nourishing as possible and spread the filling with a generous hand. Among the best fillings for a worker's lunch box are a chopped cold beefsteak mixed with a very sweet pickle; thinly sliced strips of cold steak with salt and pepper seasoning only; chopped eggs with lettuce and salad dressing; salad of salmon or tuna fish with chopped celery and plenty of lettuce. These are given simply as types. Let us not forget that lettuce will give the worker needed minerals and so put in an extra lettuce sandwich with the more hearty meat or fish or egg sandwich. Another extra sandwich might be one with a sweet filling, such as jelly and this will supply the element of dessert.

Either an orange, an apple or banana should find a place in the box. If this is ever impracticable tuck in a handful of raisins with a few nut meats.

Men do not as a rule care much for cake, but two or three "fat" molasses cookies or a "slab" of soft gingerbread will often find favor and are good for the diet as a whole.

Creamed Lobster.

Melt one-quarter cup butter, stir in two cups chopped lobster, one-half cup cracker crumbs, one teaspoon pepper, a dash of salt and two well-beaten eggs. Stir and cook until thick, turn into heated dish and cover with two-thirds cup seasoned bread crumbs, with one large tablespoon butter. Brown in the oven.

Corn Sugar and Corn Syrup Are Popular Products

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

TOASTED SANDWICHES ARE THE THING

These Appetizing Food Combinations Are Taking on New Form and Appearance.

TOLD you about the action of the Senate in legalizing the use of corn sugar without requiring mention of the fact on the label. Some opposition was raised to this action. It is contended by a few persons that "corn sugar" is made by a chemical process.

That seems funny to one who knows that without the chemist we would not have the beautiful crystals of almost absolutely pure sucrose represented by the best granulated sugar. Chemistry and chemicals enter into the refinement of cane sugar.

In making cane sugar the first procedure is to produce what is called "raw sugar." If the sugar comes from sugar cane, the canes are crushed between rollers. The juice which results is heated and neutralized by adding milk of lime. Then follows the refining process. The sugar is skinned off and the juice is evaporated and crystallized into the product familiarly known as brown sugar. This is the raw sugar of which I have spoken.

After this the raw sugar is made into a syrup and refined. This is essentially a chemical treatment. Clay, lime, liquid blood, calcium, acid, phosphate and other chemicals are used to clarify the syrup. Then it is filtered through cloth bags and afterward through bone char. Later still the evaporated and crystallized product may be bleached with sulphur dioxide. This step is of particular importance in making cane sugar from sugar beets.

Eggs have been used more frequently this week than heretofore and because of this fact only one vegetable dinner has been served. There has been an effort to vary the types of different meals and at the same time preserve the general balance of the dietary for the week as a whole.

Practically the same may be said of the Saturday breakfast where the green pea omelette is used. On this account the purified and crystallized product is known as "corn sugar."

First, that the manufacture of sugar from starch is a long-established industry, scientifically valuable and commercially important; second, that the processes which it employs at the present time are unobjectionable in their character and leave the product uncontaminated; third, that the sugar starch thus made and sent into commerce is of exceptional purity and uniformity of composition and contains no injurious substance, and fourth, that though having at best only about two-thirds the sweetening power of cane sugar, yet starch sugar is in no way inferior in healthfulness.

Glucose is made from starch. In Europe it is potato starch, but in the United States corn starch is used. On this account the purified and crystallized product is known as "corn sugar."

ALL FOOD ELEMENTS FOUND IN BANANAS

It's Good Qualities Suggest This Fruit's Great Value as a Food.

In the first place, bananas afford a very pleasant way of helping to maintain alkalinity of the blood. They are one of the base-forming foods and as such enter into the diet as a "balancer" for the acid-forming foods. Those of us who live in large cities can frequently procure delicious bananas for only a few cents a piece. The proportion to observe here is to be very careful not to buy fruit that has been broken from the stem and allowed to stay out in dust-laden air for any length of time.

Bananas shine as an energy giver by reason of the large proportion of starch they contain. Unless the fruit is completely ripe, as evidence by skins beginning to turn brown, or even with some varieties almost black, the starch is not ready for digestion.

Bananas also furnish a certain proportion of body-building material and a five and one-half ounce piece of fruit gives us 5.3 calories composed of protein or body-building food.

When we come to the question of body regulation, bananas are still high on the list. There is an appreciable quantity of lime, the element required for sound bones and teeth; even more phosphorus, without which the body cells cannot function, and even a trace of iron. So it will be seen that bananas give a very good account of themselves.

To sum up, they furnish bulk. Lime is provided for bones and teeth. Phosphorus is provided for the body cells. Alkaline ash is provided to help keep the body in its properly alkaline state. Energy is provided to keep the vigorous body driving along its way to efficient work.

Finally, when bananas are given to children or those of delicate digestion, scrape the astringent pucker principle that lies just under the skin. This should be done lightly with a silver fruit knife or the edge of a silver spoon so as not to break too deeply into the body of the fruit.

Hints on Baking.
Much depends upon the baking. Many a cake otherwise perfectly prepared is spoiled because the oven is too hot or not hot enough. Regulate the oven carefully before mixing the ingredients.

Pastry should rise in baking to double its thickness and be in light, flaky, tender layers. The novice must learn to handle it lightly and as little as possible in rolling and turning. All materials should be cold, and pastry is improved if put into the icebox as soon as made and allowed to stand several hours before using.

The baking of cake is of primary importance. Regulate the oven before putting materials together. When a cake is baked it shrinks from the sides of the pan. A light touch with the finger, which leaves no mark, is another indication that the cake is baked. Small and layer cakes require a hotter oven than loaf cakes.

Where fewer eggs than called for are used, increase the amount of baking powder about one teaspoon for each egg omitted.

If an ungreased shortening is used take slightly less and add a small quantity of salt.

WHEN you buy Wilson's you get PURE FRESH MILK—sealed and sterilized in cans for your convenience. True, Wilson's is richer—double-rich in fact—because part of the water is removed by evaporation. Otherwise it is unchanged. Nothing added—nothing taken away but the water. All evaporated milks are not the same. Try Wilson's and you'll see the difference.

A FULL QUART OF RICHNESS in Each Large Wilson's Can

Because it is double-rich you may dilute a large can of Wilson's Milk with an equal amount of water and you will have a full quart of whole milk, that is richer than the legal standard. Diluted in this proportion, Wilson's serves every milk need—economically. And for all cream needs you use the double-rich Wilson's Milk just as it comes from the can—and save half the cost of cream.

PIITSBURG RENAULT BATTERS MONTGOMERY; INJURY STOPS FIGHT IN 6TH ROUND

New York Board
In Wrangle Over
Dempsey Contest

Members at Odds as to Whe-er Wills or Tunney Shall Be Champion's Foe.

By Hype Igoe.
Of the New York World Sport Staff.
NEW YORK, April 23.—Look for a lively set-to in the old Flatiron Building before this Rickard-Dempsey-Wills-Tunney racket subsides.

James Farley, the chairman made his daily reiteration yesterday. He would die in his tracks shouting "There must be a Dempsey and Wills bout before any other," he said. William Muldoon does not favor a Dempsey-Wills bout but will vote for a tilt between Dempsey and Tunney.

When his attention was called to a statement purporting to come from William Muldoon, which the latter was quoted as saying he would resign as saying he would resign if a Dempsey and Wills bout was forced on the community, Farley said, "Well, the one man who won't resign, I'll stick to my original resolve on the question. It will be Dempsey and Wills or no Dempsey at all, and if Rickard attempts to put on any other man with Dempsey he will have his license revoked.

Boy, Page Ananias!

"Mr. Muldoon has been quoted as saying that the question of a heavyweight bout was never discussed in his presence. I do not care to offend the gentleman in any way, but he was present in a discussion concerning the heavyweight situation when we called in Mr. Rickard. Mr. Muldoon was there. That is all."

Farley evidently expects to swing Col. Phelan and D. Walker. Wear into line in his desire to force a Dempsey and Wills bout. It is up to Col. Phelan and Mr. Wear to deliver the license to conduct bouts in the Yankee stadium license to Tunney and a license to Dempsey. They hold the white hand there, no matter how Farley, Muldoon or Brower will vote when it comes to jerking Tex Rickard around the coals.

From Muldoon's statement it is believed that he will string with Rickard if there is an attempt to ditch Tex. Brower is the silent gentleman of the board. Dignified and wise, he isn't apt to walk all over the Garden plants. Somebody may rock the boat but it won't be soft-spoken Mr. Brower, insiders say.

Jack Renault's bruising punches
and a wrenched knee combined to force Sully Montgomery to utter sobriety in the sixth round of the main event of the boxing show at the Coliseum last night. Renault won on a technical knockout when Montgomery, getting up wearily
after being knocked to the canvas
a count of nine, lunged awkwardly at his opponent, missed a right lead and crumpled on the floor of the ring without being struck.

Kaiser Outboxes Denver Kid.
The Denver Kid, by his rough,
tough, mauling attack, pushed and
shoved Kaiser all about the ring.
Kaiser's boxing at all times was far superior to that of his opponent, and he landed cleanly stings
on the Kid's jaw but there was no
sting in his wallop. The crowd,
unaware of Kaiser's illness, cheered
the Denver Kid's aggressiveness at every turn.

Alberts Out of Luck.
Johnny Alberts, the "fighting lawyer," was giving one of the best
hard hitting of his entire career
Willie Ramsey in the fifth round
of their six-round bout. Ramsey opened a cut on Alberts' left eye
stream of blood before his eyes, Alberts continued to punch his oppo-
smashing right to the jaw and he floundered helplessly on the ropes
until Referee Harry Sharpe halted
against the intercession of the referee.

Joe Rivers, the tan-skinned boxing genius from Mexico, Kansas
City and points West, was the best fighter on the card last night. He had everything needed to make him a wonderful pugilist, including
either hand. His display of skill and power caught the fancy of the crowd, but at the finish the fans were cheering the Mexican's opponent, Chick Saunders, who refused to go down, although he was literally "out on his feet." Saunders' courage in the face of a terrific fire was remarkable.

Montgomery Blamed Football
Injury.

Stretched out on the rubbing table
in the dressing room after the bout Montgomery attempted to answer
the question, "What happened?"
"It's an old football injury come back," he said. "I hurt the knee
about six years ago, and while I was always afraid it might cause trouble, this is the first time I ever went bad in the ring. I have always worn the reinforced
against just what happened tonight."

Some spectators recalled that one of Montgomery's previous bouts with good big fellows ended
circumstances. As was pointed out in the Post-Disher yesterday, Sully had lost on two to George Godfrey, Jim Mahoney and Jack DeMave.

Leading Big Ten Nines
Will Clash Saturday

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Big Ten Conference baseball race by winning over Chicago, 6 to 2, early this week, giving them three victories and none defeats. Wisconsin and Illinois also with a clean slate, with a game and none lost, will clash on Saturday.

Kaiser Fought Despite Illness.

Kaiser every encouragement in his effort to come back,
was mystified at the tactics employed by "Peeewee" against the younger Kid. The bout was scheduled as a 10-round semifinal and as one of the features of the card, paler and drawn, did not last for nine rounds but catch punches, dodge, slip, parry and all. In the tenth round, coming out of a clinch, he lifted a ripping left hook to the Kid's jaw and scored a clean knockout.

"That boy had gotten to his feet after that punch in the tenth,
I must say that I would have been forced to hang on until the final bell without striking a blow," said Kaiser after the bout. "I was so weak and sick when I entered the ring tonight that I could hardly lift my hands. My stomach became upset about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and I was advised by my doctors and my doctor not to go into the ring. But I felt that I could not afford to quit the fans hours before the show and so I

nent, and he landed cleanly stings
on the Kid's jaw but there was no
sting in his wallop. The crowd,
unaware of Kaiser's illness, cheered
the Denver Kid's aggressiveness at every turn.

Alberts Out of Luck.
Johnny Alberts, the "fighting
lawyer," was giving one of the best exhibitions of clean boxing and
hard hitting of his entire career
when he was suddenly stopped by Willie Ramsey in the fifth round
of their six-round bout. Ramsey
opened a cut on Alberts' left eye
in the third round. In spite of the stream of blood before his eyes, Al-
berts continued to punch his opponent, but in the fifth round
blinded by the gore ran into a smashing right to the jaw and he floundered helplessly on the ropes
until Referee Harry Sharpe halted
the affair. Alberts made no protest against the intercession of the referee.

Joe Rivers, the tan-skinned boxing genius from Mexico, Kansas
City and points West, was the best fighter on the card last night. He had everything needed to make him a wonderful pugilist, including
science and a smashing punch in either hand. His display of skill
and power caught the fancy of the crowd, but at the finish the fans
were cheering the Mexican's opponent, Chick Saunders, who refused to go down, although he was literally "out on his feet." Saunders' courage in the face of a terrific fire was remarkable.

Injury.

Stretched out on the rubbing table
in the dressing room after the bout
Montgomery attempted to answer
the question, "What happened?"
"It's an old football injury come back," he said. "I hurt the knee
about six years ago, and while I was always afraid it might cause trouble, this is the first time I ever went bad in the ring. I have always worn the reinforced
elastic band while boxing to guard against just what happened tonight."

Some spectators recalled that one of Montgomery's previous
bouts with good big fellows ended
in a most disgraceful and distasteful
circumstances. As was pointed out in the Post-Disher yesterday, Sully had lost on
two to George Godfrey, Jim Ma-
honey and Jack DeMave.

Kaiser Fought Despite Illness.

The big crowd, in a mood to give Kaiser every encouragement in his effort to come back,
was mystified at the tactics em-

younger Kid. The bout was sched-

scored a clean knockout.

Kaiser after the bout. "I was so

Jack Renault's bruising punches
and a wrenched knee combined to force Sully Montgomery to utter sobriety in the sixth round of
the main event of the boxing show

won on a technical knockout when Montgomery, getting up wearily

a count of nine, lunged awk-

The Denver Kid, by his rough,
tough, mauling attack, pushed and
shoved Kaiser all about the ring.
Kaiser's boxing at all times was

YANKEES HAVE AVERAGED 12 HITS A GAME IN 8 CONTESTS THUS FAR

Huggins' Club, If It Continues at Present Pace, Will Set a Record for Total Hits for Season.

By John B. Foster.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Those bungling demons, the New York Yankees, may be tamed ere long in their carnival with the bat, but it is not immediately probable, judging by the manner in which they shoulder their way into the ball.

Since the opening of the season the Yankees have averaged 12 hits a game and they have faced some fair pitching and some that wasn't fair. But they have taken their toll of the good pitchers as well as the ordinary ones and that is what appears to be a bunch of devastating batsmen quite out of ordinary.

The fewest hits they have made in a game were four, and Bush and Marberry held them to that scant number, although it took the Senators 11 innings even then to defeat them. The largest number they have made is 22, and thrice they have slapped the ball for 15 and 18.

Even in Thursday's game which the Red Sox copped in 10 innings,

Harvard Looks to Horween To Restore Do or Die Spirit

Discontented With Victories in Minor Sports, Crimson Hopes to Regain Gridiron Prestige—Roper's Work at Princeton Is Inspiration for New Coach.

By Lawrence Perry.

(Copyright, 1926.)

NEW YORK, April 22.—Harvard has the feeling that the tide of affairs in sports is due to change for the better. Things that have happened in the course of the winter and spring are regarded, very justly, as straws showing which way the wind is turning.

First, the Harvard debating team won over Yale and Princeton. Ordinarily, that is to say in up with the leaders for all time.

A Devastating Attack.

Although on one day they may be held to a single figure in the batting column, the next day they may pick on some poor, defenseless chap who is trying to throw the ball and work some kind of pitching daylight through him.

When they start to make opposing pitchers panicky, they have a collective battery fire, barrage, or whatever you wish to call it, that harks back to the old days of the Detroit club in 1887. That old Detroit team never worried much about what its pitchers did, but pitchers of other clubs worried when they had to play Detroit, and the mauling Tigers literally battered their way to the pennant.

The Yankees have not been getting air-tight pitching thus far. If they had it might not have battered any stronger, but they might not have lost a game.

Championship Power.

How far the Yanks can extend this system of tremendously concentrated batting power remains to be seen. Indeed, much of the American League race hinges on this very point. If the New York team can go along day by day and center its strength in one inning after another and get a clean-up hit with some regularity when it has plenty of runners on bases, the American League probably will see a team blast its way right through all defense to collar the pennant.

They hit this way: Koenig begins with a safe line drive; Combs bangs one through the infield; Gehrig cuts one over second; Ruth is likely to hit anywhere; Meusel may lift a long, single birdie to the outfield; Lazzeri, the Italian, hits one on the nose with a pop like a toy cannon; Dugan crosses everybody by hitting to the other field, goodness knows what Collins will do with the ball—and then the pitchers are likely to join the parade. What can any team do with a crowd like that?

Other Sport Triumphs.

The track team won the inter-collegiate indoor meet for the first time in history and won a triangular meet against Cornell and Dartmouth.

The Yankees have not been getting air-tight pitching thus far. If they had it might not have battered any stronger, but they might not have lost a game.

Success in this sport for some reason serves variously to wipe out the sting of defeat in all other sports, or to make success in those sports appear cheap by comparison.

In Chicago the other night 200 Harvard alumni sat and listened to Arnold Horween's plans for the coming football season and applauded Jess Hawley, the Dartmouth coach, when he outlined the problems a coach must face and asked the Crimson grads to bear with the new football mentor in his difficult task of rebuilding Harvard football.

Bill Roper's Example.

No coach, however great, can build without material. On the other hand Bill Roper at Princeton last year showed what could be done with untutored bulk and brains when intelligence is high and spirit not lacking. Some of the best men who ever played football were not blazing stars in their preparatory schools. Men of this sort around a university as large as Harvard and part of Horween's duties will be to seek them out and inculcate in them the spirit which holds self-interest as cheap when compared to the glory of giving everything for their alma mater.

If Horween can succeed in doing this if he can induce some of the secondary school stars of New England to play for Harvard as they normally should instead of going elsewhere, if he is successful with material already available, then Horween coaching administration should justify itself.

BULLMAN DIRECTS BEARS IN THE ART OF PUNTING

Punting practice for the spring football squad at Washington U. was under the direction of Assistant Coach Gail Bullman, former West Virginia Wesleyan star, at Francis Field this afternoon. Bullman was one of the best punters in the East in 1923 and 1924. He illustrated his pointers to the Bruin grid men by sending the sphere spiraling down the field for 70-yard distances.

Capt. Mahan, Whittler, Collins, Bradley, Hannibal and McDonough figured among the backfield and line material which sent the pig-skin well downfield. One of the features of the afternoon's practice was the shift in positions of two of the promising newcomers Whittler and Collins. Whittler took up Collins' berth at tackle and Collins went to fullback in what appears to be a permanent arrangement.

In Collins, the backfield will be supplemented by a 200-pounder who can not only smash the line with force, but is a competent individual runner. Whittler, who swings a like amount of brain into his charges, looks at present as the best punting possibility on the squad. The former Girard High School star averaged over 60 yards in his practice punts.

Commission Says Board Should Not Attempt Match-making.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., April 23.—

Jack Dempsey can be matched for a championship bout in New Jersey with Gene Tunney or any other boxer qualified to give a good account of himself.

Newton A. K. Bugbee, commissioner of boxing, made this statement today when asked his attitude regarding a contest in New Jersey between Dempsey and a contender for the heavyweight crown other than Harry Wills. Dempsey has already signed articles of agreement for a bout with his opponent to be named by Tex Rickard, fight promoter.

The question of a logical contender for Dempsey's title has been raised by the New York Boxing Commission, the reported attitude of that body being that Wills is entitled to the first chance.

Commissioner Bugbee said he did not consider it to be the function of a boxing commission to dictate the opponent to be sent against the champion.

STOCKS VERY ACTIVE; RISE 1 TO 12 POINTS

Combination of News Considered Favorable Followed by Largest Market in Weeks — Bond Sales Exceed Any Day in More Than Year.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Wall street was forced to revise its opinion on stock market conditions today, and many favorable developments took place that it could not do otherwise. The market was not the most active session in weeks with prices advancing anywhere from one to 12 points and embracing every department.

The announcement of a reduction in the rediscount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent after the last night brought in an accumulation of buying orders to be executed at the opening. The market had just uncleared when news that the new electric had split its stock four from one was flashed over the tickers. Following this, the market, from New York Central to buy all outstanding stock of Michigan Central, at $1000 a share.

With this came so closely on the heels of the settlement of the Italian debt question and the resumption of negotiations in connection with the Greek question that the financial district suffered an abrupt change of attitude from one of uncertainty mingled with gloom to almost general optimism. The greatest demonstration, however, was made in the bond market where sales were the largest in more than a week, and a dozen new high records were established.

Including most of the liberalized call money given, further decline to 3½ per cent where the rates were last since March 20.

Time money rates dropped to 4 per cent for accommodations up to four months against 4½ per cent yesterday and bankers' acceptances to 3 per cent bid as contrasted with 3½ per cent on Thursday.

Resistance by Banks

It became evident on the day when the stock market had won its battle to complete an enterprise by which the great news did not prove to satisfy their position.

At the staff meeting in fact one of the biggest surprises of the day was reported to have put out on the cash lines in General Electric after the news of the split.

It should not, however, be overlooked that those heavily in steel have rated the new profits on the strength of the market and the strength of the market, namely, at the time to make up for the bull pool. Lower money rates, though a welcome treat, do not bring to those who would do their best in high-grade investment stocks.

Movement in Oils

A brave attempt has been made all year to attract, following on the oil stocks for one reason or another, the headway had been made.

This connection earlier in the year when steps had been taken to bring some of the corporations together for the purpose of reducing operating costs and perhaps obtaining a better hold on production. Just about that time the big break came and the stocks began to pass from the almost unwilling to the stock of any industry in subdivided production began to increase again and consumption slackened as a result of the late spring. Now, however, the loose ends of the campaign are being picked up with a dash, perhaps of starting again.

Whether the improved conditions of the industry which again, in evidence, are sufficient to bring about higher prices of the petroleum shares, time alone will tell.

Exchange Market Lower

In contrast to the movement in securities, the exchange rates and grain values took a downward turn, with little success. Not a single new low level for the year was reached, but the market had been made to bring some of the corporations together for the purpose of reducing operating costs and perhaps obtaining a better hold on production.

Just about that time the big break came and the stocks began to pass from the almost unwilling to the stock of any industry in subdivided production began to increase again and consumption slackened as a result of the late spring. Now, however, the loose ends of the campaign are being picked up with a dash, perhaps of starting again.

Whether the improved conditions of the industry which again, in evidence, are sufficient to bring about higher prices of the petroleum shares, time alone will tell.

Wheat Sets Down

May and June wheat contracts depressed values below the grain market, while Norwegian rates broke sharply and Spanish rates followed suit. At this time the loose ends of the campaign are being picked up with a dash, perhaps of starting again.

Operations, average 87.2 per cent of capacity during the first quarter, compared with 87.7 per cent during the previous quarter, and 75.5 per cent during the first quarter of 1922.

During the month of March Bethlehem produced 618,775 tons of steel ingots and castings, equal to 36.4 per cent of its capacity, the highest rate of operation in the history of the corporation. The high rate of operation reflects, in part, the benefits accruing from the large expenditures over the last three years of plant improvements and extensions.

Current operations are at the rate of approximately 85 per cent of capacity and new business is coming in at 77 per cent of capacity. This decrease in orders on hand is accounted for in the main by the shipments against seasonal contract business such as rails. The volume of new orders is sufficient to sustain operations at a better rate throughout the second quarter than in the corresponding quarter of 1922, though naturally not at the record-breaking rate of March.

Boston Wool Market

BOSTON, April 23.—Although predictions are being made that the market will continue unchanged in the near future, holding an operation in the West, reports that the market will be brought down by the fact that the market is not at the record-breaking rate of March.

CHAPTER 23.

July 25th.

ND now where are we? We can no longer doubt that the same hand which throttled Carroway and attacked Halliday has brought about the disappearance and almost certain murder of Maggie Morrison.

Halliday knows it. Edith knows it. I know it. But what use are we to make of our knowledge? What effect, for instance, will it have on my own serio-comic position? Could Greenough arrest me on suspicion? Although Halliday laughs at that, he is, I think, a trifle uncertain. He feels, as I do, that before long Greenough will have to satisfy the public by an arrest of some sort, and that I am the only person against whom he has the shadow of a case.

We held a three-cornered conference at the boat-house this afternoon, while Jane slept after luncheon, and for the first time Edith was taken fully into our confidence. She went a trifle pale, but she slipped a hand into mine as a vote of confidence.

"You," she said, "the gentlest soul on earth, hiding a knife under that float there, and going out at night in a boat to kill somebody? Why, you can't even row a boat, properly!"

The small laugh which followed helped us all.

What developed last night is as follows: Halliday got out of the car at the spot where the truck was found, and had Edith go back and approach slowly, along the road from town. Approximately, the conditions were the same as those of the night of the disappearance, save that no rain was falling.

Halliday, it appears, was searching for that spot, back among the trees, where the unknown had waited, secure from observation, but still able to see the truck's lights far enough away to be able to run out and hit it before it had passed.

After two or three experiments he found the proper location, and there commenced a sort of intensive search with the pocket flashlight in the car, to warn him of any approach, and the lights out.

In that, I recall, he stated that the first man who takes a case blazed the trail for any others who may come after. The situation more or less crystallizes under his handling of it. This he claims is the weakness of the French system which follows one direction until it ends in a blind alley, before it turns to another, and the strength of Scotland Yard, where inter-circus office is brought from varying sources all collectible material, which is then assort and clarified.

"Greenough's mistake here," he said, "is that he has directed all his efforts toward finding the body, under the impression that that will yield the necessary clews. That's all well enough, but time is going by, has gone by, and he has no body. And in the meantime rain is wiping out some possible clews, and the murderer himself is free to pick up the others."

He insisted that there would be clews, of one sort or another.

"There is no such thing as a perfect crime," he said, "and of course the general idea that a clew is some mysterious phenomenon which it is impossible to understand is all bosh. Clews are practically always trivial, because it is only the trivial things the criminal overlooks. He takes care of the big ones."

It may be as well to add, too, that the reason he did not make this investigation earlier was that, until the search shifted to the sea and the marshes, the vicinity where the truck was found was still the focal point, and was rarely without its constable, or its crew, of curious on-lookers.

Not far from the place he had selected, but the path a dozen feet away from it, he found a tin tramped into the ground, a small new cap, made of tin; exactly similar, he tells me, to those used on the cans of certain makes of ether, and underneath which there is a sort of curious on-lookers.

"In my case, he was unlucky," he explains. "He went through the same procedure, and took the cap off before he hailed me, but the cork came out. He had better luck this last time."

As to his discovery of the murderer's infernal symbol, he is more reticent. He had some sort of a "hunch" to examine the trees themselves, he says simply.

"What do you mean by a 'hunch'?"

"I don't know. Just an idea, I suppose."

"You thought there might be something on a tree?"

"I don't know that I thought about it at all. Skipper. I just turned the flash up, and there it was."

"Perhaps I am wrong, but his explanation does not quite satisfy me now. I think, does it satisfy him?"

He is thinking, his keen intelligence is he is strictly conventional; I think he believed it would somehow invalidate his manhood to have been a guidance by some unseen source.

But the triangle enclosed in a circle was there, on a tree only 30 feet back from the road.

July 26th.

Annie Cochran says absolutely that there is neither a red lamp nor a red lantern in the other house.

I stopped her this morning and asked her. . . .

The day has brought no developments in the Morrison case, which has settled down to more or less a routine. The searchers are fewer each day; the fishermen have gone back to their nets and trawls, and today will probably see the last of the attempts to drag likely spots on the bay.

There are many now who believe that this time the anchor rope is shorter, and that the body, securely anchored to the oozes at the bottom of the bay, will not be uncovered by the lowest tide.

For one thing, the morning mail returned to me through the dead letter office my letter of thanks to the young woman in Salem, Ohio, an event which would puzzle me more, did I not suspect the lady of using a fictitious name, for all her apparent frankness.

Such details as I can draw from her are as follows:

"Did you see Uncle Horace in the same way?"

"Wakening out of a sleep? Yes."

She has, however, her strict limitations; she speaks of a boat, but whether it was quiet or in motion she has no idea; asked if she and the girl were alone, she thinks not, but can give no reason for so thinking. Asked as to why she believed the girl was dead, she says: "I felt that she was dead," and inquires that by adding: "Bosses, I mean her—her visions unless someone has died."

This morning, at eleven o'clock, Jane left the cottage for the first time in days, giving as an excuse that she meant to look over Warren Halliday's clothing and bring back such required mending.

"I need a little attention of that sort myself," I observed. "I don't mind competing with a tapestry—after all, that is art, and what am I to art?—but I resent competing with a younger and handsomer man."

This, like most broad statements, is an error, but in this case the general developments bear her out. I myself believe that, if she saw the Morrison girl at all, she saw her dead, as she says.

She saw no rope on the body or in the boat, and there was no sign of injury on the girl.

"She looked very peaceful," says Jane, and sets me to shuddering.

She is entirely definite. She maintains that there were pieces of cloth tied around the oar-locks of the boat. "White cloth," she adds, as an after thought.

"Why cloth?"

"To keep the oars from making a noise," she says. "I have Jane, who is in a row-boat, perhaps a half hour in the veranda. But when I called she answered from below, and going down I found her among the boats.

"Well!" I said. "And are you going fishing?"

"I was just wandering about," she said. "There's another boat, isn't there?"

"Halliday's out in it. Why?"

But she pretended not to hear me, and went up the steps again.

Even then she made no excuse not to leave at once. She then went inside, and I could hear her straightening the small living room. When there was nothing more to do she came out again.

"She showed a faint distress. "I don't think he has cooked a thing since it happened," she said. "Suppose we wait for him, and take him back to luncheon?"

"I have not asked her why she has suppressed this experience for so long. Carrying it down with her to pour my breakfast coffee, going with it through the day, and at night mounting the stairs with it and set to bed. Brushing her hair meticulously, and settling Jock for the night; going in to kiss Edith and tuck her into her fresh white bed, and then closing her door and shutting herself away with it for the night. And always with the guilty feeling that she was withholding that which should be known.

For she no more doubts that Maggie Morrison was killed and thrown from a boat with a muffled oar-lock, than she doubts her own assistance. But coupled with that certainly had been her dread of possible publicity, and that ever present feeling of hers that whatever power she has is somehow shameful.

"You remember," she said, "the night of Maggie's disappearance, that a storm was threatening, and that I was nervous. I felt quite a sort of premonition. I think, anyhow, I didn't want to go to bed, and when I told you that you started off to Dr. Hayward's for a powder."

"You had meant deliberately to stay awake?"

"Yes. Once in awhile something terrifies me, and I am afraid even to wink for fear something happens while my eyes are closed. It was like that."

"Ethel was writing something or other, shut in her room, and after you had gone the storm began to come up, and I felt queer and jumpy. I went down the winding stairs, and then went into the living room and sat down to wait for you."

"Let's see. What time was that?"

"It must have been 10 o'clock; maybe a little later. Then—I hate to tell you this, William. It sounds so silly."

"I've been thinking some pretty foolish things myself, lately, my dear," I said, gravely. "Go ahead."

"Jock was very strange, from the moment we went in there. He sat and stared at that old parlor

"At the parlor organ? What in the world?"

"At the parlor organ," she said positively. "Or rather, above and behind it, where it sits across the corner. And after awhile I thought I saw something there."

"What sort of something?"

"I can't tell you," she said, and shivered. "But is it wasn't really a mist. It was like a mist. I could just tell there was something there, and then Jock lifted up his head and howled at it, and—I don't even remember getting upstairs, William."

Now, so far, this runs fairly true to form; the usual strange combination of the grotesque—witness the parlor organ—overstrained nerves due to the approach of an electrical storm, and Jock, absentmindedly staring at nothing at all and preparing to give the storm howl at howl.

There are many now who believe that this time the anchor rope is shorter, and that the body, securely anchored to the oozes at the bottom of the bay, will not be uncovered by the lowest tide.

It is the remainder of Jane's story which seems worthy of consideration, in view of her previous average of hits.

She went to sleep, sinking fathoms deep into unconsciousness, but at 3 o'clock she awoke, suddenly and fully, and sat up in her bed. But she was not in a bed at all. She was in a boat and Maggie Morrison was also with it, lying at her feet. After a time she has no idea how long—the vision faded, and she was still sitting up in her bed.

Such details as I can draw from her are as follows:

"Did you see Uncle Horace in the same way?"

"Wakening out of a sleep? Yes."

"Not a light exactly. It doesn't come from anywhere. I can't describe it exactly; the things I see are luminous."

It was decided to hold the general conference at National League headquarters in Washington. A law enforcement resolution went a step farther than those adopted in previous years in its demand that there be no weakening or undermining of the eighteenth amendment and asking that appointment of prohibition officers be made subject to civil service qualifications.

Otherwise the program of the League remains almost identically the same as that adopted last year.

Altogether it was noticeable that the organization grows more conservative, and less democratic with the years, that a new regime is in force which believes in studying fundamental problems rather than leaving itself to decide action on controversial issues.

Time was when Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Harriett Taylor Upton and other old suffrage campaigners were the leaders of the organization, the League did not hesitate to declare itself on one side or the other of almost any question presented to it, and the more important the better. They were pioneers who having weathered many a crisis, were not in the habit of sidestepping issues.

It was an inspiration on the part of Mrs. John O. Miller of Pennsylvania, leader of the faction in favor of declaring definitely against no modification of the Volstead act, to send a last minute S. O. S. to those who did not attend the convention last year. It was characteristic of Mrs. Catt to respond without hesitation and without any doubt being left as to which side of the controversy she was on.

"You are right," wired Mrs. Catt.

"I favor the strongest possible enforcement resolution including no modification of the Volstead act."

But this convention was not influenced by Mrs. Catt. A majority resolution favoring strict enforcement but failing to allude to modification, was passed 71 to 79.

It was not without intense feeling and one of the most spirited debates in the history of the organization that the radical prohibition resolution was rejected and a stronger but broader one accepted.

Many elements entered in to complicate the controversy.

The impression was made that the sentiment of the delegates was entirely dry. Only one speaker broached the idea that the Volstead act does not provide the best means of protecting the eighteenth amendment.

Otherwise there was silence on the part of any proponents of the broader resolution who might have been thinking of modification. A significant silence may be with

Home-Making Helps

For Foot Comfort

WITH the approach of warm weather, now is the time to get rid of those terrible "stiff old feet." This is especially so with the housewife, who is on her feet most of the time. Therefore she should choose shoes with softer leathers, a bit larger than the winter shoes, and low or medium heels for housewear.

The heels should be watched and set up immediately, even if only one lift shows wear. The wearing down of heels ruins the shape of the shoe and disturbs the posture of the body.

Many people get great comfort from a salt water or a soda water soaking of the feet each night, which is restful and helps keep the feet soft and cool. It is an excellent idea to see a chiropodist occasionally to have the nails properly trimmed and the feet cared for in an understanding manner.

Stockings should be selected with great care. They should be light, fine, have no disturbing seams, and be long enough not to bind the foot at any point. Around the house at work, white or pale tan or gray stockings will be the coolest to wear.

These same laws apply to children's shoes. Growing feet should be watched carefully, and shoe purchases that fit comfortably. A tight shoe or a very loose shoe are both bad. A quarter to a half inch longer than the foot when standing is best. Shoes are an item that we can ill afford to economize too strictly upon. Bad feet make bad dispositions, hinder efficiency and are not necessary if we take proper care of them.

NOTE: Moths themselves are harmless. Moth-worms do all the eating. They are hatched from eggs laid by moths.

Before the secret could be told, however, the liquid must be tested. And it was tested—for months longer.

Hundreds of woolen samples were mothproofed with Larvex. These samples were covered with moth-worms—which died. And were replaced time after time for months. They all died. And not one sample treated with Larvex was damaged. There wasn't one moth-hole in the lot of them.

Today, over a million women protect all their woolen things from moth-damage by moth-proofing them with Larvex. Use it also to moth-proof—

Its Directors Were Told of Missing Secretary's Irregularities, Receiver's Lawyer Retorts.

The Bohemian-American Building & Loan Association, which appeared for a time to be free from irregular transactions by its secretary, Thomas F. Pechan, missing real estate dealer of Twelfth and Russell boulevards, is already involved to the extent of $35,000, with 40 percent of the accounts yet to be checked.

Claims for this amount against the association have been made by customers of Pechan, whose liabilities in his real estate business failure have been estimated to exceed his assets by $25,000.

Examiners of the State Finance Department have found second deeds of trust in the accounts of the association as collateral for loans, which is a violation of the law that provides building and loan associations shall lend money only on first deeds of trust.

It has been discovered also that Pechan gave receipts of the association to many customers who sought to invest in the association, then diverted the money to his real estate transactions or to his personal uses. Customers holding these receipts have given notice they will seek to hold the association liable for their investments, pointing out they dealt with Pechan as secretary and agent of the association.

Says Association Can Meet Claims.

Henry Kortjohn Jr., attorney for the association, said these claims would be partly protected by two surety bonds amounting to $12,500, given by Pechan as secretary of the association, as required by law. The remainder could be taken care of out of the surplus and undivided profits, which amount to $24,000, and from the accrued dividends and contingent fund, which amount is $17,000. Thus, he said, if the claims against the association grew no larger, the contract holder would not be affected.

Kortjohn does not concede that the association is liable for all the claims against it. After examining several of them he said there was doubt that all of them would stand, and he would not submit to payment of several of them except by court mandate.

Blames the Directors.

Conrad Faehn, attorney for Harry Faehn, receiver for Pechan's real estate business, declared the building and loan association would liable for all such claims.

The president and directors of the building and loan association knew of irregular transactions in the association by Pechan as early as March 20," said Faehn, "and yet they permitted him to remain as secretary of the association until the date of his disappearance, April 14. Pechan was secretary and agent of the association, and as he took people's money when acting in this capacity, he made the association liable for the transactions.

Pechan referred to the discovery March 20 that second deeds of trust had been taken by Pechan as security for loans. The information and other particulars were reported to William Hertman, president by a cookkeeper. The directors met and employed Kortjohn to represent the association. Pechan was present at the meeting and was questioned. He declared the transactions were mistakes in bookkeeping and asked for time to correct the errors. This was given him, many of the directors expressing faith in his honesty. As pressure was brought to bear on him to straighten out the affairs, he suddenly left the city.

First Thought to Be Innocent.

At the time Pechan was first confronted with the irregularities it was not suspected the man had been violated, according to Kortjohn, and many of the directors confidently believed that Pechan was being unjustly charged with irregular transactions.

One of the transactions with which Pechan was confronted was a loan of $3000 from the association to Joseph Kurman, 3191 Lida Avenue, to buy his home at that address. Kurman had $2000 cash in addition, which he gave to Pechan, instructing the latter to pay the sellers $4000 cash and take as a deed of trust for $3000 with the remainder. Pechan paid the $2000 to the sellers as instructed.
